GOP Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Miami Beach City Council agreed by a single vote Wednesday to submit a $350,000 bid for the 1972 Republican National Convention. A GOP official said he expected the party would switch the site from San Diego, Calif.

Richard Herman, in charge of convention arrangements for the GOP, said the Republican National Committee's arrangement committee would meet Thursday in Washington, with the full committee meeting Friday.

"I will present the Miami Beach bid to Chairman Bob Dole (Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.) and the arrangements committee and recommend that it be accepted," Herman said in a written statement. The shift was set up when San Diego became bogged down with financial and construction problems.

The Miami Beach bid, approved by a 4-3 vote after a stormy meeting, includes no cash, only goods and services. The basic commitment is for rent-free use of the convention center, police security and bus service for delegates.

Concerned that a massive influx of demonstrators would threaten peace in the resort city, the council also urged the federal government to provide an elite 1,000-member "convention peace corps." The request came after councilmen voted down a proposal that the bid be contingent on approval of the peacekeeping group.

A cosponsor of the plan, Vice Mayor Robert S. Goodman, said that minutes before the vote he received the assurance of Jerris Leonard, head of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, that Leonard would "pull out all stops" to get the "peace corps" for the city.

Goodman said the so-called peace corps would be in Miami Beach from July 1 through Aug. 31. The Democratic National Convention will be held in the convention center July 10-14; the GOP's nominating convention is set for Aug. 21-24, the same dates as slated in San Diego.

It was proposed the government finance the "peace corps" drawing its members from among "outstanding young men and women" in the armed forces who would undergo two weeks of intensive training.

Goodman said it would be preferable to military rule in the island city if severe disruptions broke out.

Laird—Viet Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the military situation worsening, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird ordered a top-level team of logistics specialists to Vietnam Wednesday to determine whether Saigon requires more American military aid.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said the group, headed by one of Laird's top civilian assistants and accompanied by five generals, will consider both Saigon's military needs and what additional measures may be needed to protect the remaining U.S. troops.

They will determine, Friedheim said, what weapons of Saigon's hard-hit troops will be replaced as well as what new arms may be needed to counter "new and sophisticated Soviet weapons."

Friedheim said it is possible the South Vietnamese can get along with what they have. But he added that if new weapons are needed it may be necessary to dispatch more American advisers to train the South Vietnamese in their use.

Meanwhile, Republican congressional leaders at the White House quoted Adm. Thomas Moorer Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as saying "only time will tell" the outcome of the enemy offensive in Vietnam.

House Republican Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan said he emerged from the session with a sense of cautious optimism, adding "it is my impression that time is on our side."

Friedheim would not speculate on what new weapons the U.S. could send over in time to counter Hanoi's invasion. But these are likely to include more modern antitank guns and long-range artillery which could be airlifted across the Pacific in a matter of days.

Until now, he said, Laird has been satisfied that the Vietnamization program had provided Saigon with adequate military supplies and equipment.

"But in the secretary's view the massive Communist invasion across the demilitarized zone and the introduction of new and sophisticated Soviet weapons into the enemy's operational inventory make it only prudent that we review the logistics situation," Friedheim said.

Hoover—Honors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Receiving an honor bestowed on few, J. Edgar Hoover lay in the Capitol Rotunda Wednesday—flag on his coffin and a wreath from his President at his feet.

Some of the highest officials of the land he served so fiercely assembled to pay tribute to the memory of the man who directed the FBI for 48 years.

President Nixon will deliver the eulogy in the funeral service Thursday.

"J. Edgar Hoover was a man who epitomized the American dream of patriotism, dedication to duty and successful attainment," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in a brief eulogy. "From modest beginnings he rose to the pinnacle of his profession and established a worldwide reputation that was without equal among those to whom societies entrust the difficult tasks relating to enforcement of the laws."

The closed coffin was on a catafalque, draped in black velvet, in the center of the Rotunda under the towering Capitol dome. Only 21 men, eight of them presidents, have been similarly honored.

Senators and representatives, justices of the Supreme Court, the President's Cabinet and the men closest to Hoover were gathered in a tightly packed circle. Gov. Ronald Reagan of California also was there.

The chaplain, the Rev. Edward L. R. Elson, will conduct the 11 a.m. funeral service Thursday in the National Presbyterian Church, where Hoover twice was a trustee. Burial will be in the Congressional Cemetery.

The 77-year-old Hoover never married. He leaves nieces and nephews.

Thieu Switches Generals Shake Up Viet Command

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government, shaken by the debacle at Quang Tri, changed commands in the far north Wednesday, putting the defenses there in the hands of a general highly regarded by the Americans.

Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, who has been commander of the southernmost military region 4 including the Mekong Delta, was placed in command of the northern region in the hope he could reverse the fortunes of battle.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuam Lam, who commanded in northern military region 1, was called to Saigon and presumably got the news of his dismissal from President Nguyen Van Thieu. The South Vietnamese command said the changes were made on direct orders from Thieu.

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai was relieved as commander of the 3rd Infantry Division that was badly battered at Quang Tri. An announcement said he was put under investigation.

The 3rd Division, formed only last year, received the full shock when the North Vietnamese swept across the demilitarized zone March 30 to launch the spring offensive. It quickly abandoned frontier bases and fell back to Quang Tri, where it was shattered in the battle for that northernmost provincial capital.

The loss of Quang Tri opened the way for a North Vietnamese advance on Hue, the old imperial capital 32 miles to the south.

Disorganized government troops were still finding their way into Hue. Commanders tried, often futilely, to pull them into units to join in the defense of the former seat of Vietnamese kings.

There were reports of clashes six miles southwest of Hue, but no major thrust was reported by enemy troops coming down from Quang Tri.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Blystone reported from the northern front that it had been relatively quiet and that government positions appeared fairly well stabilized along the My Chanh River defense line 20-25 miles north of Hue.

There has been speculation that the North Vietnamese drive might slow after the fight for Quang Tri while the enemy regrouped and resupplied.

In an effort to stop the North Vietnamese drive, U.S. planes for the second consecutive day carried out more than 600 strikes in the four military regions of South Vietnam. About two-thirds of the attacks centered in northernmost Quang Tri Province and Thua Thien just to the south. Hue is the capital of Thua Thien Province.

Three more American planes were lost, U.S. headquarters said, a light spotter aircraft and two A1 fighter-bombers. They were downed south of Quang Tri, but the three crewmen were rescued, spokesmen said.

Silous Huddleston Says He Is Guilty

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — A key defendant in the 1969 Yablonski murders said Wednesday the killings were arranged and paid for through two United Mine Workers officials, one of them a member of the union's international policy-making board.

Silous Huddleston of Lafayette, Tenn., made the statement in Washington County Court before he pleaded guilty to murder and conspiracy charges in the deaths of union insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his wife and daughter. Huddleston, former president of a Tennessee UMW local, is accused of being the middleman in the killings.

The 63-year-old Huddleston showed little emotion as his 2½-page statement was read by an FBI agent.

The statement identified the two UMW officials as Albert E. Pass, 51, of Middlesboro, Ky., a member of the union's international executive board and secretary-treasurer of the UMW's District 19; and William J. Prater, 52, of LaFollette, a field representative in District 19 under Pass. Both men have been charged in the case.

The Yablonskis were shot dead at the family's home in nearby Clarksville, Dec. 31, 1969, three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitterly fought election for the UMW presidency to incumbent W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

The government claims the election had little to do with Yablonski's death and that the 59-year-old former Boyle ally was killed instead to keep him from testifying before a federal grand jury probing UMW activities.

Boyle—whose election victory over Yablonski was set aside earlier this week by a federal judge in Washington, D.C.—has denied any knowledge of the killings. The union refused comment on Huddleston's statement.

In no way did Huddleston's statement connect Boyle with Yablonski's death.

But Sprague told newsmen after Huddleston's statement was read that the payoff money for the killings evidently was funneled through District 19 Research and Information Committee funds which Pass controlled.

"We have certain information that (the fund) was set up at a conference between Tony Boyle and Albert Pass," Sprague said.

Prosecution sources said that in return for his testimony and guilty plea, Huddleston had been promised that the state would not seek the death penalty against him.

In his statement, Huddleston said Pass and Prater first approached him about killing Yablonski in mid-1969.

Huddleston said he received instructions on when to kill Yablonski and advice on how to do it from Pass, and that the payoff itself—which he said totaled $15,000—was handled by Prater.

Huddleston was the third defendant in the case to plead guilty and turn state's evidence. He was preceded by his daughter, Annette Gilly, and Claude E. Vealey, one of the gunmen.

Paul E. Gilly, Annette's husband, and Aubran W. Martin, the two other alleged gunmen were convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to death in separate trials.

Huddleston said he became involved in the plot because he believed that Yablonski intended to eliminate UMW pensions.

Huddleston, a pensioner himself, said that if retired miners lost their pensions they "might as well be dead."

Continue Search For 58 Miners

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — As pumps sent tons of air underground, rescue workers began probing the hot, smoky shafts of the Sunshine silver mine Wednesday in search of more than 50 miners missing in a fire that killed at least 24 other men.

Mine officials said 58 men were unaccounted for; 108 others escaped to safety soon after the fire broke out in the nation's richest silver mine shortly after noon Tuesday.

Marvin C. Chase, vice president and general manager of the mine said rescue workers were sealing off some areas of the mine and pumping air into the tunnels.

He said the fire was believed to have started with spontaneous combustion in timbers in a section of the mine no longer actively worked. The fire was thought to be between the 3,400 and 3,700-foot level of the mine.

The bodies of 19 men were being removed from the 3,100-foot level Wednesday, Chase said. Five others were recovered earlier.

Chase said he had no idea where the missing men were located.

"The best indication the men are still alive is the large amount of air being sent down," he said. He said he believed surviving miners were opening valves of the air supply system to breathe.

A 40-man shift drawn from the more than 100 rescue workers faced heat, smoke and poor visibility in efforts to reach the trapped men.

A Sunshine spokesman said the missing men have not been heard from since the fire broke out.

Kellogg is a town of 7,000 in the mountainous northern Idaho panhandle 70 miles east of Spokane, Wash.

One survivor, who said he helped 31 others to safety, said, "There was no organization—nobody knew what to do or how to do it."

Bryone L. Schulz, 21, from his bed in Kellogg's West Shoshone Hospital where he was taken for smoke inhalation, said: "Everyone was just in an uproar."

Schulz, who operates a cage, an elevator-like device used to transport miners from one level to another, said he helped 31 miners to safety before being overcome by smoke.

The Sunshine mine shaft goes underground on a steep thin hillside in a canyon off Interstate 90 and extends some 5,000 feet into the earth.

Sunshine officials said the mine yielded more than two million ounces of silver during the first three months of this year making it the richest silver mine in the United States.

Nixon Sidesteps Possible Battle Over Next FBI Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sidestepped a possible election-year battle over replacing J. Edgar Hoover by naming an old friend and aide to be acting FBI director Wednesday.

The White House said Asst. Atty. Gen. L. Patrick Gray III will serve at least until after the Nov. 7 balloting. Nixon was described as anxious to keep the directorship of the Federal Bureau of Investigation out of partisan politics.

As an acting appointee, Gray will not be subject to Senate confirmation which would be required for a regular appointment.

Hoover, FBI chief for 48 years, died Tuesday. In choosing Gray, the President bypassed a number of Hoover aides to select a Navy-educated lawyer with no law-enforcement experience.

A retired Navy captain, Gray served eight years as special assistant to the then Vice President Nixon during the Eisenhower administration.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon chose him because he is a man in whom the President places "implicit personal confidence."

Ziegler said Gray might yet be nominated to be the regular FBI director if Nixon wins reelection. Should the President be defeated, Ziegler said, the choice would be left to his successor.

Gray will continue to serve as assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Division. But his pending nomination to be deputy attorney general, the number two post in the department, will be withdrawn.

Although the post of FBI director pays $42,500 a year, Ziegler said the 55-year-old Gray will draw but $38,000 a year—his regular pay as assistant attorney general.

Although Gray technically was appointed by acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who released first word of the selection at a White House news briefing, Ziegler said Nixon actually decided on the matter.

Gray gained attention last weekend when he addressed the Orange County (Calif.) Bar Association and roundly lambasted press coverage of the Nixon administration.

He said much of the nation's press was guilty of "often inaccurate, biased and grossly unfair reporting."

A native of St. Louis, he was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1940 and served in the Navy for 20 years, retiring as a captain.

Shortly after leaving military service, Gray joined the personal staff of Nixon, who was then vice president, as a special assistant, and remained in the post until 1961. He subsequently practiced law in New London, Conn.

Ziegler said Nixon knows Gray will perform his new duties "in the way the President wants them performed."

Asked why Nixon had passed over a number of career FBI men who were close associates of Hoover, Ziegler said the chief executive was not well-acquainted with any of them.

Kleindienst promised to act almost within minutes to sign the necessary papers to install Gray as acting FBI director.

Ziegler said no decision has been made on who will next be nominated to be deputy attorney general.

Gray appeared with Kleindienst at the White House briefing session but neither would respond to questions.

Humphrey Lead Slim In Ohio Demo Primary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. Hubert Humphrey maintained a narrow margin over Sen. George McGovern Wednesday night in the Ohio Democratic presidential primary.

Troubles in the problem-plagued primary continued through Wednesday night as an error in tabulation put McGovern within 1,397 votes of Humphrey with 74 per cent of the state's 12,648 polling places reporting.

The corrected figures, instead, gave Humphrey a 16,208-vote spread as the contest moved into the final hours of counting.

A spokesman for the secretary of state's office said, "I suppose the error came from incorrect addition or transposed figures. I haven't had time to investigate just what exactly occurred."

The difficulties in reaching a decision on delegates' selection in Ohio were complicated Wednesday by two federal court suits, one asking that all ballots in Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) be impounded for counting by federal marshals. The other asked that the county's primary election be declared void.

The votes have come in a slow trickle, but the spokesman in the secretary of state's office said he expected the Humphrey increase as the remaining ballots were counted and forwarded to Columbus.

In neighboring Indiana, Humphrey defeated McGovern Tuesday's other spotlight primary.

The results confirmed the position of Humphrey as the favorite in the Democratic race as they headed front-runner McGovern's lead.

Upholding A Principle

The scene was the Supreme Court, the occasion a hearing unique in the history of the United States. For the first time, the Senate was appearing before the court to plead in its own behalf. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-North Carolina) representing the body of which he is one of the most distinguished and respected members, was addressing the court. "I do not hold a brief for Senator Gravel," he said. "We are here for the United States Senate."

What the United States Senate sought was a ruling that would prevent questioning of Sen. Mike Gravel (D-Alaska) or his aides by a federal grand jury with regard to publication of the Pentagon Papers. This questioning was desired by the Department of Justice. Thus what we had in the Supreme Court chamber was a confrontation between the legislative and executive branches of the government.

The confrontation is one of broad general concern. For what is at stake is the doctrine of the separation of powers, which has served our nation well since its earliest days. Senator Ervin was not exaggerating as much as one might at first suppose when he said that for the high court to allow some of Gravel's aides to be questioned about his part in securing publication of the Pentagon Papers "would absolutely destroy the independence of the legislative body."

That independence is sanctioned, to an important degree, by the passage in Article I of the Constitution which states that "for any speech or debate in either House they (members of Congress) shall not be questioned in any other place." This so-called "speech or debate" clause has been construed as a virtual guarantee of immunity for members of House and Senate.

It was the contention of Ervin and his associate, Sen. William B. Saxbe (R-Ohio), that this doctrine is not merely a shield for the member of Congress, but applies also to his assistants. Furthermore, they contended, it even extends to "third parties" whom the government might wish to question about the senator's or representative's activities in the discharge of his duties.

Ervin and Saxbe took pains to make it clear that they were not defending Senator Gravel's actions. Saxbe, indeed, told the court that in using a Building and Grounds subcommittee as a forum for publicizing the Pentagon Papers Gravel "deeply abused the rules of the Senate." The two spokesmen for the Senate were before the court for one purpose only—to defend the principle that members of Congress may not be questioned "in any other place." This is a principle of fundamental importance in our system of government.

The leaders of India, Pakistan and the new nation of Bangladesh now have a chance to bring to the Indian subcontinent the peace which has been denied it for 25 years.

Involved are some 750 million people or about one-fifth of the world's population.

The new chance comes as the aftermath to the India-Pakistan war of 1971 and affords the opportunity to heal not only the new wounds left by the emergence of Bangladesh from what once was East Pakistan but old ones as well.

Independence from Britain in August, 1947, sharpened rather than erased old differences based on religion and introduced new ones ranging from rights to the waters of the subcontinent's great rivers to ownership of storied Kashmir or the largely worthless salt swamps of the Rann of Kutch.

Failure to settle the dispute over Kashmir has been one of the great disappointments of the United Nations.

The Tashkent meeting engineered by the Soviet Union between Indian and Pakistani leaders after the war of 1965 failed to produce lasting results.

Greater Will for Peace

But in late May or early June Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi of India and President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan will meet in New Delhi of their own volition, and, according to observers, with a greater will for peace than at any time in the last 25 years.

It will be a time of compromise which seems to have been recognized in preliminary meetings by representatives of both sides.

At least some of the sessions will be three-way, including Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh.

As the military victor, Mrs. Gandhi will be negotiating from the greatest strength and therefore will need special wisdom.

As well as accomplishing separation of Bangladesh from the remainder of Pakistan, Indian troops also occupied some 2,500 square miles of Pakistani territory in the west, including some of previously Pakistani-occupied Kashmir and parts of Sind, home province of President Bhutto.

Opportunity for Generosity

The latter gives Mrs. Gandhi a special opportunity to be generous.

From the public statements of Mrs. Gandhi, Bhutto and Sheikh Mujib sharp differences emerge.

Mujib says he will not negotiate with Bhutto until Bhutto formally recognizes Bangladesh as an independent nation.

Bhutto says he will recognize Bangladesh but needs "a quid for my quo", meaning he wants the release of some 93,000 military and civilian prisoners held by India first.

India says she cannot release the prisoners without agreement from Bangladesh which wants at least some of them for war crimes trials.

A card in Bhutto's hand is the presence of some 400,000 Bengalis in West Pakistan, including some soldiers and civil servants badly needed by Bangladesh. Pakistan has refused to grant them exit visas.

From the spoils of war, it is hoped, now can emerge the fruits of peace.

It's A Big Surge For Delegations

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—If one big objective of Democratic party reforms was greater participation in the presidential selection process by a wider variety of people, then so far they must be deemed a very considerable success.

For instance, the sheer numbers of people taking part in precinct or district meetings were impressive in several non-primary states. Some 85,000 participated in Minnesota's precinct caucuses. That compares interestingly with the 86,000 who actually went into voting booths in the March 7 New Hampshire primary.

Minnesota was not a "sport." Some 75,000 took part in Washington state, 37,000 in Arizona, 35,000 in Iowa, 20,000 each in Georgia and Mississippi.

Astonishing, furthermore, are the numbers of people formally filing for delegate spots for the 1972 Democratic convention in Miami Beach. In some primary states they are nearly swamping the ballot.

Some sample filings among these states:

For the 20 delegate posts to be filled in New Hampshire's primary, 117 individuals filed. For the 160 settled in the March 21 Illinois primary, 504 filed.

Other totals include 625 for 137 spots in Pennsylvania, 672 for 153 in Ohio, 427 for 48 in Maryland, 268 for 35 in West Virginia, 297 for 22 in Nebraska, 1,904 for 238 in California. (In some of these cases, other delegates are chosen outside the direct primary process.)

From figures like these, it would be hard to make a case in 1972, except in a few limited areas, that people are being frozen out of the selecting process.

An important reform aim, of course, has been to open up that process to fuller participation by women, the young, blacks and other minorities. Here, too, significant gains are being made.

In Arizona, 44 per cent of the 25-member delegation are young people, who represent just under 20 per cent of the state's population.

In Wisconsin, 32 per cent of the elected delegates are young, and they are less than 19 per cent of the state's population.

Youthful representation on chosen delegations is strong, though not that high, in Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and New Hampshire.

Overall, in a check of nine states where selection is complete, the young hold 17 per cent of the delegate posts, a proportion just slightly below their 19.6 per cent representation in the populations of those states.

In several of these same states, blacks have won delegate spots in proportions higher than their "presence" in state populations.

They have 34 per cent of the delegates in South Carolina, where they represent 31 per cent of the population. They have 30 per cent of the delegates in Georgia, as against 26 per cent of the population. In Arizona, their delegation percentage is 12, their share of the population 9.4 per cent. In Wisconsin, the respective percentages are 5.4 and 3.6. In Iowa 9.0 and a mere 1.5 per cent of the population.

The blacks are somewhat under-represented on the Illinois delegation (9.4 per cent against 13.6 per cent of the population), and in Florida. But their average 15.5 per cent of nine delegations is a sharp improvement over earlier presidential years.

Through these same delegations, representation of women ranges from a low of 11.8 per cent in Illinois to 48 per cent in Wisconsin. The average is just under 30 per cent, against a national percentage of more than 50 per cent of the population.

The chosen numbers of women are at impressive new highs, but they are not satisfying women activists who want a full 50 per cent everywhere.

Ann Landers: Jobs Turn Sour

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is overwhelming me. I got the idea to write to you when I saw a letter from a teen-ager who vomited every time she had to eat away from home.

My husband has had so many jobs I can't count them. When he starts he always seems happy. He's sure "this is it." Suddenly the whole thing turns sour. It's either a remark his boss made or someone he works with insulted him. Last time it was nothing specific, just a feeling that the people at the place didn't like him. He doesn't want to work there anymore.

It wouldn't be so bad if he'd just quit, but he never does it that way. He gets sick. I mean deathly ill. He vomits, runs a high fever and is so weak he can't get out of bed. Afterwards he goes to the company doctor. "Nothing wrong," the doctor says. You have a "sensitive stomach."

I've been reading your column long enough to know this man of mine needs counseling. When I suggest it to him he says, "You and that nutty Ann Landers think counselors are magicians. I don't need counseling. I have to work it out myself."

What can I do, Ann? — His Wife

Dear Wife: Suggest another doctor. With a little luck he'll find one who will tell him, "Your stomach trouble originates higher up — in your head. You need counseling so you can find out why you can't function in a normal way." Perhaps your husband should be doing a different kind of work. A good therapist will explore this possibility.

Dear Ann Landers: Next week my husband and I will celebrate a big anniversary. My mother has spoiled what would have been a glorious surprise party by tipping me off. This the fourth time she has done this and it just burns me up. I've told her each time that I'd rather not know. She insists she does it for my own good. She says, "I don't want you to get caught wearing an old dress — or maybe your hair won't look right."

It would be such fun to walk into a room just once and have people yell "SURPRISE", and have it really be a surprise. I've had to fake it three times and now I'm going to have to fake it again. It not only takes the fun out of it for me but I feel like such a phony baloney.

Any suggestions, Ann? — Maude The Fraud

Dear Maude: Tell your mother that if she tips you off again you're going to call the hostess and ask her to change the date of the party because somebody blabbed. If your mother is the hostess tell HER to change the date of the party and keep her lip zipped or you won't act surprised.

Dear Ann Landers: Here it is from the horse's mouth, in case that girl from Corning won't take your word for it. I married a man with a drinking problem thinking he would change for me. (God, how he promised!)

When I think that I broke up his marriage I could die. I envy his ex-wife! How I wish I were in her shoes. His children never see him. He won't even sign the birthday cards I buy for him to send. His life consists of working and drinking. I am only 24 years old and I feel like 100. I've decided to go to an Al-Anon meeting next week and get some help for myself since he won't budge. I hope Corning listens to you. I wish I had. You told me not to marry this man. — Detroit Free Press

Dear D.: I'm glad you're going to give Al-Anon a try. It has helped millions. Good luck, dear.

Thoughts

And he closed the book, and gave it back to the attendant, and sat down; and the eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed on him. And he began to say to them, "Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing."—Luke 4:20, 21.

What you bring away from the Bible depends to some extent on what you carry to it.—Oliver Wendell Holmes, poet.

Communication

Thank you for allowing us to express our ideas in the two previous communications. (Please correct our error. The Mr. Lair should have been Hubert Glenn Lair.)

Continuing two important aspects of proposed Route 413.

In this area is not the best location for this highway along the Burlington Northern Railroad? Let it run all the way from Beardstown to Concord and then continuing on established boundary lines to the railroad at Alsey on down to Jerseyville and eventually—Alton. (It is not expected to go directly into St. Louis.)

Why this route? This land has already been disturbed—natural animal life and wooded areas. There are few houses and practically no buildings along the railroad which would be displaced. Railroads are built along more level routes where it is not necessary to build so many bridges and so much grading. Landowners are not so apt to ask a high price for land along a railroad which does not diagonally bisect their farm, in both instances saving money for the taxpayer.

The next paragraphs are important only because it is a picture of what happens many times when a super highway invades the countryside.

Personally our immediate concern, as well as for this untouched area to the northwest, is for the homes of our son and ourselves. It will bisect our son's farm, the former Bollmann place. This will leave on the west side an area of about ten acres of farmland with five acres of trees which have been there for 60 or 70 years or longer. This will be completely inaccessible for farming by him without going around about five miles or more. Across the valley Mr. Lair will have seven acres, part of which is timber, which will be cut off from his use so he can not reach it by any road.

Our place of ten acres adjoining Mr. Lair is about half timber. There are about 80 oak trees 90 or 100 feet tall and a hundred years old. We have treasured and revered them without cutting a single one.

With this prospective highway we will have a 300 foot highway completely along our west boundary built for speeds up to 80 miles per hour. Along the present country road, our north boundary, we will have an earthen wall about 18 feet high at the west end and at the east end about eight or 10 feet high. At the east end our driveway will take us up that 10 feet onto the road. The only way we will have to leave. This embankment is the east 900 ft. of 1800 ft. It takes to overpass the highway. This is for local travel only.

This last aspect is our personal reason for wishing Route 413 to be located in a different place.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Welles

The New Epidemic

Heart Disease Is A Young Men's Killer

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor
NEW YORK (NEA)—He died of a heart attack.
"But he was so young."
Those five words are being used more often these days in relation to death from heart attack and related heart disease. And spoken tersely, with pity and with fear, they tell the tale of the rapidly increasing incidence of heart disease among young men, and in fact all persons, in the United States and other "developed" countries today.

Among 25- to 44-year-old men the death rate from heart attacks rose 14 per cent, from 45.7 to 52 per 100,000 between 1950 and 1967, the last year for which such statistics are available. During the same period the heart-attack death rate for all men also rose.

Why are we faced with an epidemic of heart disease today, especially among younger men?

There is no single answer; there are many answers, and many are yet to be learned by the scientists who even at this moment are seeking to unravel the tangle of thousands of pieces of data, to relate seemingly unrelated bits of information, and to gather more.

Although finding a cure for heart disease is important, it plays second fiddle to the severe need for the enactment of preventive measures.

"A large number of the people who die of heart disease have no previous medical findings and feel perfectly normal. Their first symptom is sudden death from a heart attack," explains Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, one of the world's foremost heart specialists and nationally distributed medical columnist.

"It is so important to have a preventive program. You can't wait for the first symptom then treat it if the first symptom is death," he says.

Chest pains and other symptoms of heart attack, called a myocardial infarction by scientists, were not accurately identified until about 1900 when two German physicians found a relationship between the illness and changes in a patient's heart.

In 1912, when a previously healthy 55-year-old man suffered a heart attack, Dr. James B. Herrick became the first American physician to actually describe the events of heart attack.

Dr. Lawrence Lamb

"Although considered a medical rarity in 1912, this is now a common end to the American executive's career. In little more than 50 years the rare disease has become first commonplace and finally the expected," Dr. Lamb writes in his book, "Your Heart and How to Live With It."

He adds that the striking increase in heart disease represents a real increase. It is not simply that the disease existed early in the century and was not diagnosed until recently.

"This is a new health problem associated with our time. It has not cropped up because we have conquered all other diseases and this is one of the only ones left. Heart disease strikes too many young people in the prime of life," Dr. Lamb says.

He attributes the epidemic mainly to today's living patterns. At the turn of the century cigarettes were not widely sold or used, people ate fewer calories, less food, less fatty food and exercised more.

"There is a general tendency among American men to become fatter earlier in life. A 29- or 30-year-old man is likely to be as fat as his parents or grandparents were in their mid-40s. What this means is that as far as obesity is concerned middle age comes in the latter 20s instead of the middle 40s," Dr. Lamb says.

For years physicians have associated heart disease with coronary atherosclerosis, fatty deposits in the coronary arteries. But it was thought to be a problem associated with age, striking middle-aged and older men. During the Korean War and World War II, however, while doing autopsies on young men killed in battle, scientists found some startling results.

It was found that the "accumulation of fatty deposits in the arterial wall that ultimately leads to its blocking was present in over 77 per cent of these young men. In 10 per cent the process had already blocked over 70 per cent of the opening of one or more of the major arteries. These diseased arteries were not those of sedentary middle-aged men, but those of individuals, representing a group of Americans presumably in better than average health," Dr. Lamb explains.

The San Antonio physician, formerly a Baylor University professor of medicine and a high ranking civilian cardiologist with NASA and the Air Force, recalls that one of his youngest cases of heart attack was a 20-year-old aviation cadet. "I've seen many young and healthy men in the Air Force flying population who had experienced heart attack before the age of 30."

Thus even being a young man in good physical shape does not eliminate the possibility of heart attack.

Young or old, however, the most common cause for medical death in American men is heart disease. In 1900 the top three causes of all deaths in the United States were tuberculosis, pneumonia and diarrhea and enteritis. In 1968 the top three killers were heart disease, cancer and cerebral hemorrhage (also a circulatory ailment).

In 1900, 137 of every 100,000 Americans died of heart disease. Today the figure has almost tripled to 373 per 100,000.

Although many may say that increased stress has played a major role in this increase, Dr. Lamb disagrees to some extent.

"I think it is a gross oversimplification to attribute the marked increase in heart disease simply to stress. After all, man has always been subject to stress and many of the long-lived people in our history have had progressive personalities. Certainly Thomas Jefferson was a goal-oriented, aggressive man with leadership qualities, but he didn't die of heart attack," Dr. Lamb says.

"It is our other living habits, smoking, eating too many fats and too many calories, and leading sedentary lives that are killing us."

South's bid of four spades represented a slight stretch. His opening bid was just about minimum and North's jump to three spades had strongly invited a game bid but not forced South to make that call.

If you are going to overbid, you need to know how to play tough hands and South certainly handled this one with real skill.

If West had opened a trump and East taken his ace and played a second trump, South would have no way to collect ten tricks, but West made the normal lead of the king of clubs.

South looked over the hand carefully and asked himself the important question from the code word ARCH. How can I make this contract?

The answer was that he needed six trump tricks plus the three side aces and king of hearts. This meant he had to work out a cross-ruff to collect

Activities of the Morgan County Audubon Society are scheduled for nearly every weekend during the month of May. There will be no regular evening meeting this Friday night, May 5 due to early departures for two groups which are making the annual Spring Census on May 6. This year the census locally is being coordinated with a state-wide plan worked out by Vernon Kleen.

One group, led by Miss Emma Mae Leonard, will leave from in front of her house at 237 Pine street at 6 a.m. This will cover west of Jacksonville to Meredosia and north to Beardstown. Members will be taking sack lunches and returning around 5 p.m.

Governors Pledge Party Unity

Resolution of support for the final day of the conference lauded Nixon's accomplishments in general terms and urged Congress to act on administration proposals such as revenue sharing, welfare reform, and crime and drug control.

Other issues such as busing and tax reform were not mentioned in the 450-word position statement approved unanimously.

The single reference to Vietnam in the resolution introduced by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York urged "continued pursuit of a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam conflict."

Agnew, in his address to the governors, called the statement "well phrased and comprehensive" and he said it was "evidence of the fact that we have a united team to restore President Nixon to the White House."

PARENTS ORGANIZE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois has about a dozen organizations of foster parents clearly shows there is unity among the governors for the President's re-election.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Crib Deaths Lead To Parental Guilt

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—Three weeks ago I lost my first and only granddaughter. It was a dreadful experience. My daughter said she was fed and bathed at 11 a.m. and put back to bed. About 1:30 p.m. she went upstairs to wake her and found the baby was dead. We raced her to the hospital by ambulance, but it was too late. The doctor told us this was a crib death. Could you please write something. It has worried me ever since she died as to what could cause this. It is such a shock when a baby is fat and healthy and only two months old to die suddenly.

Dear Reader—Yes, it is always a terrible shock and disappointment. Fortunately, the condition is rare. Several different theories concerning this problem have been studied. Once it was attributed to an enlarged thymus gland, the gland lying over the heart which is exceptionally large in children and diminishes in size with age. The exact way it was felt to cause death was never completely explained. A current theory is that the airway becomes suddenly obstructed—perhaps by spontaneous closure in the larynx area. This has even occurred while a baby was nursing at the breast. No doubt there are several causes for such tragic events. I can only tell you that these problems don't seem to be inherited and it doesn't mean that the problem will occur again. It certainly does deserve a lot more study.

I want to emphasize emphatically that such a death cannot be prevented by the parents and has no bearing on any known aspect of parental care. Parents suffer needless anguish after this type of a mysterious event, thinking if only they had done this or hadn't done that. Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 76 years old and I am in good ed with a hernia for the last three months. I am wondering if I am too old to have surgery. Dear Reader—There isn't such a thing as being too old to have surgery if it is indicated. Of course, each case has to be evaluated on an individual basis regardless of whether the patient is a newborn or more than 100 years old. In general, people we consider very old can tolerate minor surgery reasonably well, and some can tolerate major surgery. It is amazing what can be accomplished today with the modern advances in surgery and medical support.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

In Hollywood

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it's Professor George Jessel. America's stocky, talkative toastmaster general has committed to textbook and tape recording a home study course for anyone who must make a speech.

"The most important thing," he says, "is believing in what you're saying." What he's saying, as he stands dour-faced amid his myriad plaques, 300 keys to cities and 186 military and police medals, is that at 74 he's the man for the job.

"Most of these guys that write books made one speech at the Elks and got a glass of beer. I make a living at it. I've been speaking publicly, all over the God-fearing world, for almost 55 years."

The voice is tinged with harshness, the figure erect, the blue jacket dapper, the face pink, the gray hair slicked back, the eyes a watery brown. Jessel has been in show business since he was 8½, when his mother got him a job singing nights for $4 a week at a Bronx nickelodeon where she sold tickets. Days he was batboy for the New York Giants.

At 12 he was in a vaudeville kid act with Walter Winchell. Later he was successively a vaudeville partner of Eddie Cantor, a Broadway star, a radio celebrity, a producer of 24 movies including "The Dolly Sisters" and "Nightmare Alley."

His biggest satisfaction, he says, has come from speaking to U.S. military men. Soon, "God willing," he would leave for Korea and Vietnam—"my 150th visit since World War I to American soldiers who are trying to save the beloved United States of America from the rotten Communies."

The late Gen. George S. Pat-

ed with a hernia for the last three months. I am wondering if I am too old to have surgery. Dear Reader—There isn't such a thing as being too old to have surgery if it is indicated. In general, people we consider very old can tolerate minor surgery reasonably well, and some can tolerate major surgery. It is amazing what can be accomplished today with the modern advances in surgery and medical support.

Several military jackets in his closet bristle with medals—a medal for valor, a bronze star, "every place you go they hang something on you." A Purple Heart he says, is from being wounded twice, in Vietnam, at 70.

"But with all this I'm barred from television," Jessel claimed. That resulted, he said, from an incident last July when NBC newsmen Ed Newman cut short a Jessel interview on the Today show after the entertainer referred to the New York Times and the Washington Post as "Pravda."

"Abe Lincoln wasn't on television either," Jessel cracked, "and he became a very well known fella."

A reminder list on a kitchen wall at Jessel's San Fernando Valley home showed coming speaking engagements in Florida, New York, Washington and Bermuda.

"George has to work," says Leonard Miller, his manager for eight years. "He's in the habit of spending a lot of money, and he gives a lot away."

Miller says he got the idea for the 12-lesson "George Jessel Course in Speaking Dynamics" while he and Jessel were chatting with automaker Henry Ford II in Monte Carlo nearly three years ago. The price, Miller said, will be $375.

"Ford and an associate mentioned that they further the idea of speaking to clubs like Kiwanis, Elks and Lions as an integral part of owning a dealership," Miller said. "Right then I got the idea."

From a newspaper article on the rising importance of cassette tapes, he thought of reinforcing book instruction with tape. Miller and Jessel wrote the book with the help of two public-speaking experts, and Jessel

Of Stroke Survivors

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — At least one in every 100 living Americans has had a stroke and survived.

I joined this growing two million-plus group a little over six weeks ago.

The one question everyone asks a stroke victim is, "What did it feel like?" Well, in my case, it didn't feel like anything.

Nothing. I'm afraid it wasn't dramatic at all. There was no premonition or warning of any kind. I felt no lightning bolt of pain. Or even a twinge. No confusion. No fainting or falling down. No outcry. No paralysis or numbness.

But when the phone rang on my desk late in the afternoon of March 16, I noticed as I answered it that I was in the bathroom.

"How many martinis did you have at lunch?" my friend remarked. "You sound like you had four."

"None," I told him truthfully. "You know I've been on a temperance binge since the first of the year."

After hanging up, I went out to the office washroom mirror and studied my face. I found I could wrinkle my brows and move both eyes freely. No pain. No feeling of weakness or numbness or lack of coordination in hands, legs or feet.

There did seem to be a slight downward turn at the left corner of my mouth, but hardly enough to dent the winning charm of my manly dimple.

I went home and decided not to do anything until morning, which could have been a deadly decision but wasn't. When I awoke, the bathroom mirror confirmed the definite turn-down at the corner of my mouth, and a short rendition aloud of the Gettysburg Address sounded like Abraham Lincoln full of martinis. But it was no worse. The stroke was over.

After going to the office and writing my daily column, I reported to the company nurse and doctor who found my blood pressure was still in the gasket-blowing range—180 over 140. It should have been 130 or 140 over 80.

Three hours later, I was in a hospital next to the room in which a famous movie star several years before had been treated successfully for his occupational ailment—delirium tremens.

I spent the afternoon drawing up a new will and spent the evening—without the knowledge or consent of my doctor—drinking Irish whisky with several grieving friends. They had gathered there largely, I believe, in the hope that since it was St. Patrick's Day, I would surely reward them by making an immortal deathbed utterance. I made several, as a matter of fact, but nobody bothered to take notes.

I awoke with my first hang-over of 1972, one I am beginning to suspect will be the last.

No Time For Idol Talk At Table

It has long been my belief that children should be included in dinner table conversation. I still believe it even after years of such brilliant repartee as "Can I have some string beans?" "May 17." "Sure can I have some first?"

When children are small it is necessary to put emphasis on table manners, word definitions and the like, but when they are older we must use this time together to share daily activities, gather opinions on current events, discuss timely topics.

Noticing suddenly that the children are old enough to put premise into practice, I said to them one evening, "Stop slouching. You, there, get your elbows out of the gravy and stop wadding bread balls. We are going to converse!"

Betraying the best instincts of a teacher, I then asked them a question to which I knew the answer.

"Did any of you happen to read the book review section of last Sunday's paper?"

"You aren't going to blame me! I asked before I used part of the paper to start the fire!"

"Now now," I smiled. "I didn't mean to start an argument, I simply thought we might discuss the elections—after all, it won't be too many years until you will be old enough to vote and a good understanding of the political system is..."

"May I be excused, I have to go to the bathroom?"

"Has anyone seen my stilts? I was practicing this afternoon and..."

"Will you make her stop practicing in the family room—that banging makes the TV act funny!"

"He ate part of my cake while I was in the bathroom!"

If there's anything I enjoy it's a scintillating family discussion.

Here's How To Stick Posters To Paneling

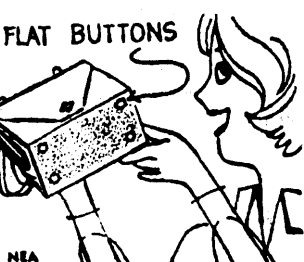

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—R.M. wanted to know how to keep posters sticking to her paneled walls. I use "double-stick" (on both sides) carpet tape on mine and it works very well. Stick tape around the edges in strips about eight inches apart, then peel away the backing and start at the top and press to the wall.

where the tape is and go on down its length the same way. I find this tape will hold two or three pounds.—L.K.

DEAR POLLY AND R.M.—We put hooks in the seams of our paneling and this worked like a charm. For heavier items, such as plates and pictures, we used a nail made for paneling which can be bought at a building supply store. Place such a nail on the panel (not in the seam), pound it gently with a hammer and it will hold securely.—I.G.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—The new rug I bought for my bedroom came folded instead of rolled and now there are several creases that do not want to lie flat. I hope some reader can help me solve this problem.—DOROTHY

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Cracks in living room walls are likely to catch your visitors' eyes quicker than your new furniture.

It need not be so. Modern plaster patching materials make it fairly simple to get professional results even without experience. Whether you use the most common type of patching compound, which comes in powder form and is mixed with water, or the ready-to-use type, the fundamentals of repair are the same.

Small cracks and holes require only that the compound be placed over the damaged area, pushed in and smoothed with a putty knife. With a small crack, using a finger to press the patching material into the opening is often the most effective way of doing it.

Larger gaps in the wall require that the openings be undercut; that is, making the bottom part wider than the top. This locks in part of the new plaster under the old and thus prevents it from dropping out before it hardens. When all loose plaster has been removed from the opening, the area should be dampened with a wet sponge or cloth, after which the compound is applied. Incidentally, if you have one of those punch-type openers used for making holes in beverage cans, you'll find it excellent for the undercutting.

For even more sizable wall openings, it is better to apply the compound in two stages. In the first, the repair is made to within a fraction of an inch from the surface. This is allowed to dry for a few hours, perhaps overnight. The remainder of the patch is then made, smoothing it with a putty knife. This procedure helps to prevent shrinkage, which occurs when a large opening is filled at one time.

After the patch has set, wet it with a sponge to keep it from drying out too quickly. While professional painters often proceed immediately to paint over repaired areas, it is better for the amateur to wait a day or two. The spot should then be primed with a sealer or dab of paint before either repainting the entire wall or trying to match the patch with the rest of the surface.

The inevitable settling of a new house sometimes will result in tiny wall cracks. Repairs should not be attempted until the cracks have stopped spreading. One way to determine this is to mark the ends of the cracks with tiny chalk or pencil marks. Keep checking them. When the cracks have not moved beyond the marks for a few weeks, go ahead with the repair job.

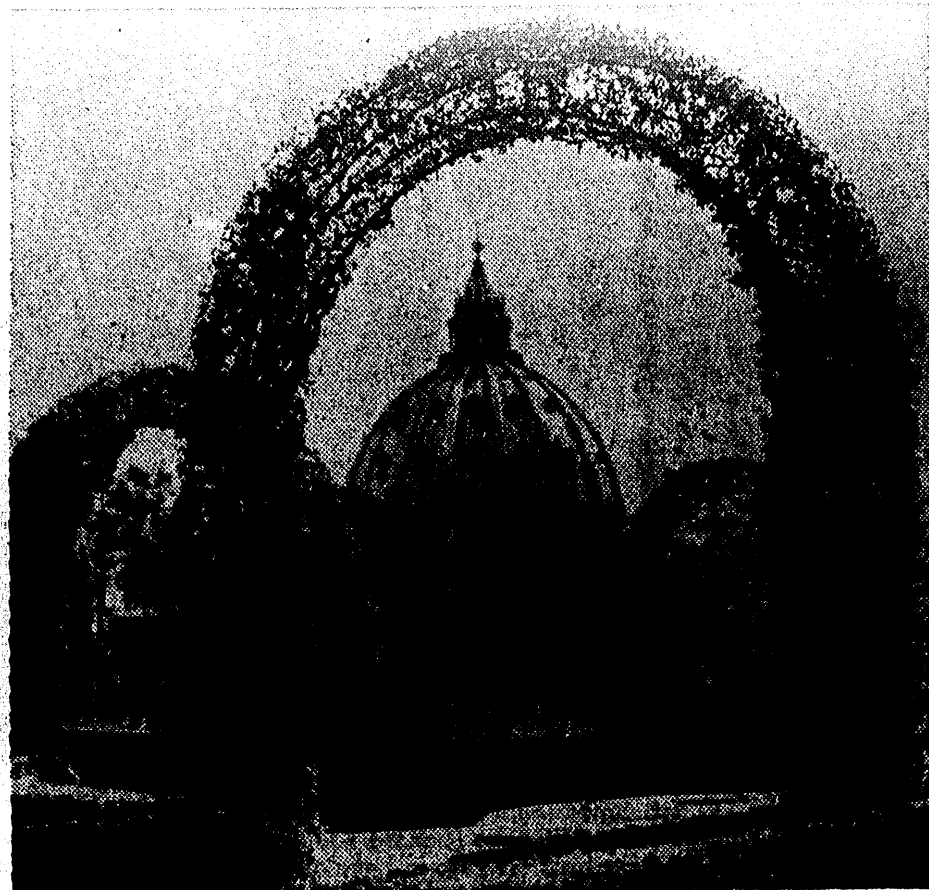

(Removing mildew, repairing brickwork and patching concrete are among the 35 subjects discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Glazing: A Pane You'll Like

By MR. FIX

Safety glazing materials should be used in hazardous locations in preference to ordinary glass. Such locations include storm doors, sliding glass doors, tub and shower enclosures, glass entrance doors or any glass panel adjacent to them.

Safety glazing materials include tempered glass but tempered glass must be manufactured to size, ruling out its use for do-it-yourselfers who wish to cut it in a variety of sizes.

Plexiglas acrylic sheet material fills the requirements and is material that can be purchased generally and which the amateur can fabricate into custom sizes.

This is a clear material in sheet form that is far sturdier than glass. Even if it should break it does not shatter into flying small pieces but breaks into large dull-edge chunks.

Because it does not shatter or crack the way glass does it is even better than glass for the do-it-yourselfer to handle — both easier and safer. Most of us, when we have to install a window pane, take the measurements to a hardware dealer who cuts the glass to size.

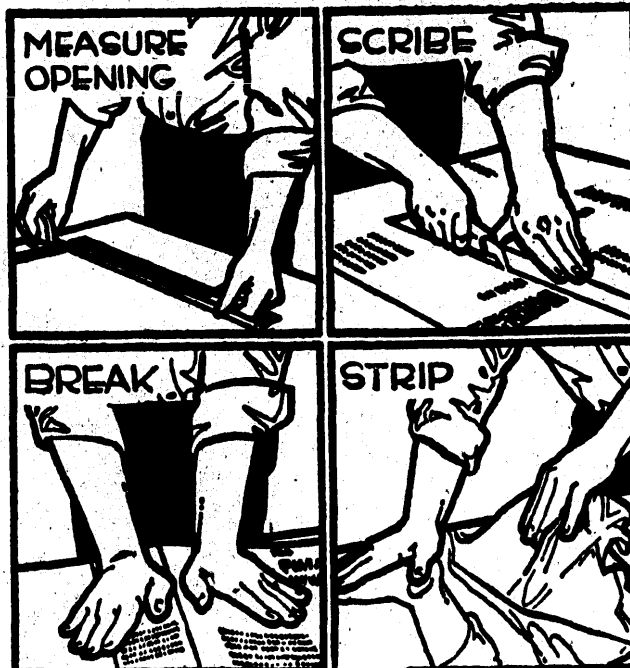

Plexiglas is available in a variety of thicknesses but figure on using the 1-10th-inch thickness for ordinary replacement of window glass and 1/4 inch thickness for replacement of storm door sash without framing.

A special cutting tool for use on Plexiglas is available for about $2. It is used as you would a glass cutter, scoring the material using a straight-edge as a guide. The difference is that you score it more times, five or six times for the thin material, seven to 10 times for the quarter-inch stock.

The material is covered with a protective coat of masking paper. Leave this on while cutting. Position the material over a three-quarter-inch dowel that runs the length of the scored line. The line should be up. Hold the sheet down with one hand. With the other apply a downward pressure on the short side of the break. Move both hands as you work along the line.

Installation for the thinner material is the same as for glass. Clean out all old putty, glass fragments and glazier points.

Place a thin coating of glazing compound on the inside edge of the rabbet. Remove the masking paper from the Plexiglas, press the material in place. Drive in new glazier points, then apply glazing compound as you would for any window.

For direct installation in storm doors, use quarter-inch material and cut to the size of the opening, not the size of the old frame which held the glass. Take 1-32nd of an inch off of each dimension to allow for expansion (measure all panes that way). Then place the new material directly in the opening, tightening the clips just as you would for the frame.

(Editor's Note: The trade name Plexiglas has been used throughout since it meets the test requirements of the American National Standards Institute, and not all sheet plastics do. Also, it is readily available.)

Collector's Must: A Standard Catalog

At least half of the inquiries addressed to this column seek information about foreign coins brought into the United States by tourists and returning servicemen. Most of the readers express a desire to establish the type and market value themselves, but because the piece may have been issued in the early or mid-1800s, full identification may be impossible.

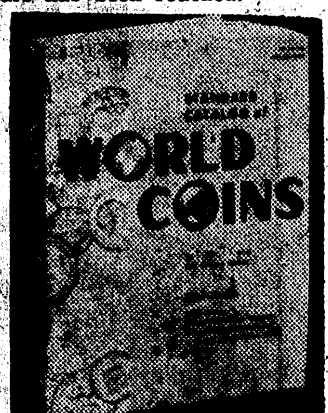

One of the most comprehensive reference works ever published for this type of research is available at most libraries or through the American Numismatic Association library for members of that organization.

Collectors wishing to extend their libraries will find constant use for the "Standard Catalog of World Coins," published by Krause Publications, Inc., Iola, Wis. 54945. It is available through your favorite bookstore, department store or local coin shop, $10. It would be almost impossible for anyone referring to it not to be able to identify most foreign coinage issued within the past 150 years.

Because world currencies fluctuate frequently, values may be determined from a convenient table expressing the exchange rate in the coinage of a given country in any United States value from 5 cents to $500. A recommended "do-it-yourself" kit for anyone contemplating a tour including the 261 countries listed in this book.

1972 Eisenhower Dollar Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the United States Mint, has announced that orders for the 1972 Eisenhower Proof dollars are accepted by the San Francisco Assay Office beginning May 1. Acceptance of orders will continue until the Mint's production limit of the 1972 dollars has been reached.

Orders received after the cut-off notice will be returned to the sender along with a notice.

that the sender's name has been entered on the automatic mailing list maintained by the mint. Prior to all future issues, those whose names appear on this list will receive notice of the order acceptance date immediately.

MONEY CLIPS

There is a limit of five Eisenhower Proof dollars per order. The price per coin remains the same as the 1971 issue of $10 each. This includes handling and shipment by first class registered mail. Orders will be filled as quickly as possible, but the purchaser should be reminded that each is stamped and processed in the order in which it is received. No preference.

MARY-MARTHA CIRCLE AT CHAPIN PLANS ELECTION

CHAPIN — The Mary and Martha Circle of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Chapin met April 27 in the church basement. After the opening hymn, accompanied by Miss Eda Eckhoff, Pastor Ramthun led a discussion on How Our Founders Worshiped.

Twenty-three members answered roll. The assistant secretary, Mrs. Warren Lakamp read minutes and Mrs. Elfred Delmer gave the financial report. The standing committees also reported.

A letter was read concerning a zone leadership workshop to be held at Christ for the Deaf Chapel in Jacksonville April 28. Attending were Mrs. Raymond Werries, Mrs. Wendell Middendorf, Mrs. Russell Werries and Mrs. Martin Staake.

An invitation to the 27th annual Lutheran Women's Missionary League district convention was read. This will be at Pekin, Wednesday, June 7.

A thank-you was extended to all who helped at the Triopia Athletic banquet. A report on the banquet was given by Mrs. Carlton Schumacher.

The nominating committee for the election in May is Mrs. Raymond Fricke, Mrs. Gladys Nergenh and Mrs. Marie Tiemann.

The dates set for cleaning the church are May 9 and 16.

Mrs. Warren Lakamp, Mrs. Fred Lakamp and Mrs. Edward Middendorf provided entertainment and the hostesses for the social hour were Mrs. Flora Fricke, Mrs. Russell Werries and Mrs. Pearl Robacker.

Children present were Oren and Mary Russwinkel and Lori Werries.

Bruckner Winning Musical Acclaim

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

NEW YORK (UPI)—As they have for Gustav Mahler, the musical fashions of the times have also turned in favor of Anton Bruckner (1824-1896), the devout son of an Austrian village schoolmaster whose great soaring symphonies hardly won him the recognition they deserved from the Vienna musical establishment of the time.

Richard Wagner said of him that "I know of only one who may be compared to Beethoven and he is Bruckner."

Bruckner, in fact, revered Wagner, and it was not to his advantage at a time when the musical world in Vienna was split between Wagnerites and anti-Wagnerites.

An organ virtuoso of international reputation, Bruckner did not begin composing symphonies until he was 38. Of those numbered there are nine, the ninth unfinished, but they never brought him musical fame in Vienna.

In recent releases Herbert von Karajan has recorded the Fourth in E Flat (The Romantic) and the Seventh in E with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra for Angel in a three-disc album (SC-3779). And RCA has brought out a recording of the less frequently played Sixth in A by William Steinberg and the Boston Symphony Orchestra (LSC-3177).

Von Karajan and the Berlin Orchestra gave the professionally excellent and beautiful performances to be expected of them in playing the lofty and religious sonorities of Bruckner. The Sixth Symphony is less heard. Steinberg and the Boston give it a fine reading, worthy, too, of another of the world's great orchestras.

RCA has brought forth another record by Jascha Heifetz in its "Violinist of the Century" series—the Mozart Concerto No. 4 in D and No. 5 in A (LSC-3265). No. 4 was recorded in 1962 with the New Symphony Orchestra of London under the direction of the late Sir Malcolm Sargent. No. 5 was recorded in 1963 with a chamber orchestra otherwise unidentified. Good Heifetz.

Political Campaigns: An Insider's View

Editor's Note: For almost 30 years, from 1941 until his death on April 13, 1970, Merriman Smith covered the White House for United Press and United Press International. In that period he also covered seven presidential campaigns. This article tells something of what Smith, as a close-up observer, thought about presidential campaigning. It is digested from the book, "A White House Memoir," a collection of Smith's writings edited by his son, Timothy, and published April 24 by W.W. Norton & Company, Inc., of New York. Some material in "A White House Memoir" has been published before but much of it is based on new material found after Smith's death.

Presidential Campaigns By MERRIMAN SMITH Distributed By United Press International

The first principle of watching political campaigns—and particularly presidential races—is that most of what appears to be happening and most of what seems to be said is a sham. Politics tends to generate a fair amount of mis-, half- and un-truths anyway. And campaigns magnify this natural tendency.

The presidential sweepstakes, for example, uniformly begin with the major contenders disavowing their candidacy. This is a bit of traditional showmanship which bears little relation to fact.

Once a contender admits his candidacy, he then usually feigns ignorance of anyone else in the race. President Johnson, for instance, said in 1964 that he had no opinion as to who might win the Republican nomination. (This was at a time when Sen. Barry Goldwater was the acknowledged front-runner among the Republicans).

When the campaign actually starts, subtle changes seem to occur in the political dialogue. Politicians start calling other politicians "politicians" again, for example. Candidates start accusing opponents of making a political issue out of questions of public policy on which opinion is divided and which, in short, are political issues. Consider the number of times in 1968 that one candidate or another was heard to say that he did not intend to trifle with national interests by making the war in Vietnam a political issue. Then, for the next 15 minutes he usually talked about Vietnam.

'Flexible Sin' Doctrine
A curious doctrine of "flexible sin" emerges in campaigns. In one election year, we hear pointed observations that if the Republican president would only stay in Washington instead of traipsing off to Gettysburg, we might not be in such a mess with Castro. The Republicans dutifully scream "dirty politics."

Two years later, Republicans imply that if the Democratic president would only stay in Washington instead of frittering away time on Cape Cod, we would not be in such a fix in Cuba. Democrats know the proper response, too, and cry "dirty politics."

Rhetoric in political campaigns is usually so consistently self-justifying and disingenuous that when candor makes a rare appearance the effect can be shocking. Rose Kennedy made a brief statement in 1968 that was really just a series of truisms, but her mere statement of the obvious was big news in the campaign season because she had been frank enough to make it.

Asked about the family's financial backing of Sen. Robert Kennedy in 1968, his mother said: "It is our money and we are free to spend it any way we please. It's part of this campaign business—if you have money, you spend it to win. And the more you can afford, the more you'll spend. The Rockefeller are like us—we both have lots of money to spend on our campaigns."

High Gear Conventions
At the national conventions, campaign pettifoggery shifts into high gear. For instance, outcome of any convention, regardless of the predetermined there must be demonstrations.

convention demonstrations are bought and paid for by state delegations to herald the sterling qualities of a native son who in truth does not have a chance of being nominated for anything outside his home precincts.

When a nominee is picked and the campaign goes on the road, the pattern of little white-lying shifts, but continues. One figure. Invariably, most of the reporters traveling with a presidential candidate estimate the crowd at a political rally on their own and find that it is far under that of the ranking police official present. It is an old journalistic custom, however, to quote an authority for a political crowd estimate. Thus, a single person who was visible in the crowd, marked it off into equal

The total police count notwithstanding, was under 27,000. Celebrities are solicited, sometimes hired, to add glitter to campaign platforms. Candidates start claiming that they have discovered some Irish, Jewish, or Italian ancestry in their family trees, depending on the audience. (When FDR told an Al Smith dinner audience in

Fight To Save Fish From Fatal 'Bends'

By ALLEN NACHEMAN
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An unwitting conspiracy between nature and modern technology is threatening the Pacific salmon and its cousin, the steelhead trout, with extinction.

But man, aroused over the threat of loss of two of his finest game and food fish, is taking corrective steps in an effort to return the salmon and steelhead to their former abundance.

The problem is nitrogen supersaturation. It occurs when water crashing over the spillway of a dam traps air and forces it deep below the surface of the pool below.

The greater pressures deep below the surface of a dam pool force nitrogen into solutions measured up to 42 per cent above normal.

Fish biologists say nitrogen solutions over 10 per cent above normal can injure a fish and those more than 25 per cent above normal are usually fatal.

This is gas bubble disease, a condition akin to the bends. In 1971 it killed 90 per cent of the salmon and steelhead runs in the Columbia River and its tributaries, by estimation of the National Marine Fisheries Service. This year it could be even greater.

The more water that flows over dam spillways, the more nitrogen is supersaturated. And the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says the runoff from the melting snow this spring may be the highest in the Columbia Basin in 78 years.

Nitrogen supersaturation occurs naturally at the base of high waterfalls. But it dissipates as the water is aerated in the churning currents of a natural riverbed.

But the waters of the Columbia system—through Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia—no longer run free. Dozens of generating dams have converted them to a string of slack water lakes.

Instead of dissipating, super-saturated nitrogen increases in concentration as each dam in the downstream progression adds its share. And when the water finally crashes over Bonneville Dam on the lower Columbia and begins its slow, lackluster run to the Pacific, the nitrogen concentration is high enough to kill practically every fish in the river. Which is what fish biologists say is happening today.

The salmon and steelhead could avoid gas bubble disease by making a permanent home in the upper Columbia tributaries where most are born, and staying clear of the dams.

But nature had other plans for them.

From the moment it hatches on the gravel bar of some sparkling stream hundreds, even thousands, of miles from the Pacific, a salmon has but one driving urge: to reach the sea. Then, after an average of two years in the ocean, and assuming it escapes an early end in some cannery, a deeper, more mature instinct takes hold: the urge to reproduce. Not to reproduce just anywhere, but in the same stream, on the same gravel bar, of its birth. And it spends the rest of its life going home.

Man provided for the migrating instincts of the salmon and steelhead with fish ladders at most dams—underwater stairways that give the fish a detour around the dam on its way to and from the sea.

Provision of the fish ladders was not entirely unselfish. Without them, dams would completely block migrations and the fish would quickly have been wiped out. And the annual value of the commercial and recreational catch of salmon and steelhead in the Columbia River system is estimated by federal agencies at $25 million.

But nobody was fully aware of the magnitude of the nitrogen supersaturation problem until the late 1960s, when the National Marine Fisheries Service began keeping close tabs on fish mortality rates. It found that without quick and drastic remedial action, the salmon and steelhead would soon be gone.

Out of that grew a storm of public outrage, particularly from sports and conservation groups. And with it emerged a villain: the Corps of Army Engineers, which built and operates most of the Columbia Basin dams.

The Corps, under increasing public pressure now has launched a three-prong attack on nitrogen supersaturation that today offers real hope for a solution.

It first of all began to regulate river flows, holding water high in the Columbia system so a minimum would be going over the dams during the peak fish migrations of spring and fall.

It designed a slotted bulkhead which, fitted into a dam spillway, allows water to flow through rather than over the dam.

And it designed a concrete deflector called a "flip lip", which, installed at the base of a spillway, forces cascading water outward, keeping it near the surface rather than allowing it to plunge deep where supersaturation would occur.

The aim of all this is to hold nitrogen saturation as close as possible to the normal rate. But how close is close enough?

Federal agencies contend that a saturation limit 10 per cent above normal would be sufficient. And Washington and Idaho have adopted that as a goal. The Oregon Environmental Quality Commission has set Oregon's limit at 5 per cent above normal.

Until remedial measures can be fully evaluated and put into operation, however, such limits are largely academic. The outlook, depending upon who is talking, ranges from skeptical to optimistic.

"The free enterprise system in America has been mighty good to me," Walter says, "and this is an appropriate time and a meaningful way to plow some of the results of success back into the same system. We are doing it through a Youth Enterprise Awards program."

"We're trying to find, reward and bring recognition to 25 people between the ages of 18 and 25, each of whom has taken an initial independent step toward a worthwhile career."

"We hope our search will encourage a new breed of young entrepreneurs and, in the process, produce more creative leadership for the future."

Applications for the awards must be received by Sept. 11.

That deadline gives young photographers several months yet in which to initiate any ideas they now have and thereby start a project that could qualify. They must be over 18 but not over 25 as of Dec. 7, 1972.

Candidates who believe they qualify can get into the competition by writing a letter telling why their efforts as an entrepreneur are worthy of winning a Youth Enterprise Award. The letter must be accompanied by a sponsor's recommendation and verification of the facts submitted. A sponsor is any person over the age of 25 whom the applicant considers a success.

Nominations for candidates may also be made by local chambers of commerce, service organizations and professional groups and societies.

Abortion Seekers Doing So Earlier In Their Pregnancies

By G.C. McDANIEL

AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Women seeking legal abortions in the United States are doing so earlier in their pregnancies, a year-long national study shows.

This was reported Monday at the annual meeting of the American College of Obstetrics and gynecologists by Dr. Christopher Tietze, associate director of the Population Council, New York.

Earlier abortions result in fewer complications than later ones.

The council's study involved termination of 72,988 pregnancies between July 1, 1970, and June 30, 1971, in 60 teaching hospitals and six clinics in 12 states and the District of Columbia.

That represents an estimated one-seventh of all abortions in the country during that period.

In his report to the college, Dr. Tietze said the need for information about abortions "became urgent" following enactment of New York's liberal abortion law, effective July 1, 1970.

Complication rates from abortions in the second 12 weeks were three times as high, Dr. Tietze said.

"This emphasizes the necessity and desirability from the medical point of view of doing abortions early in pregnancy," he said at a news conference.

Dr. Tietze's report showed that 75 per cent of abortions were performed in the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

The type of patient most frequently seen in the institutions surveyed was a young, single, white woman pregnant for the first time and aborted as a private patient.

But in the course of the year, the study showed, the proportions of married, black patients with children and nonprivate patients "increased significantly," with little change in the age distribution of the women.

Late abortions were most frequent among women under age 18, nonprivate patients, black women, and mothers of six or more children.

Dr. Tietze and Dr. Jean Pakter, director of the bureau of maternity services and family planning for the New York City Department of Health, both criticized reported plans of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller to support an amendment to New York's abortion law which would outlaw abortions after the 16th week of pregnancy.

The proposals "would be disastrous," said Dr. Pakter, who added that this kind of restriction invites deception.

Many women who seek abortions after 16 or 24 weeks of pregnancy are the poor, the ignorant, "frightened teenagers," who do not know what to do, she indicated.

These women would suffer the most harm, Dr. Tietze said, and if the proposed amendment were enacted it would contribute to revival of illegal abortions.

Dr. Pakter said pediatricians in New York City report there are fewer premature births since enactment of the state's liberal abortion law and that perhaps some premature births had resulted from attempts by women to abort themselves late in pregnancy.

She said there are not as many women who seek second abortions as some critics have indicated. "Women don't enjoy this experience," she said, "and do everything they can to avoid repeating it."

Stamps In The News

Nations are learning the importance of postage stamps as a means of promoting their progress, programs and prowess.

One such country, the Republic of Indonesia, is proud to show off its growth and development in a series of several new stamps and a list of more to come, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Just issued is a set of three stamps to salute the 25th anniversary of the Unilever Commission for Asia and the Far East, plus a stamp to hail the 50th anniversary of Indonesia's Institute of Textile Technology.

The ECAFE stamps depict the following: a reproduction of the UN's ECAFE emblem with its slogan "Progress Through Cooperation," a micro-wave tower looming over tiled fields and a symbolic design for irrigation and road building.

Other announced Indonesian issues include a commemorative to the World Heart Campaign and International Book Year, the 10th anniversary of the Hotel Indonesia (as part of its Tourist series), Summer Olympics, the Indonesian Cultural Series, and a continuation of its fish series.

All these stamps are now (or will be when issued) available at your local stamp dealer.

Collectors of U.S. stamps can now receive automatically direct from the U.S. Postal Service first day cancellations of each new stamp, affixed to a souvenir page suitable for insertion in albums.

The 8 x 10 1/2 inch souvenir page consists of a photo of the stamp, the stamp itself with first day cancellation, along with philatelic data and other information about the stamp. The page will be printed in two colors.

To receive the pages the collector merely deposits $10, with his initial order. Each time he receives a souvenir page, a computer deducts the cost from his account—and he will be notified when his account needs replenishing, so no new issues are skipped. Cost of the souvenir page is 50 cents plus the cost of the stamp.

Mailings will be made monthly with souvenir pages of the preceding month. The program starts in June with the first page being the Yellowstone National Park stamp issued March 1.

Money orders or certified checks for $10 should be sent to Philatelic Automatic Distribution Service, Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20038.

Sale of the famed Alfred J. Ostheimer III collection was made to the Honolulu Advertiser to assure the group of stamps of being kept intact and in the islands.

There is the added historic note that the newspaper's founder, H. M. Whitney, was the first postmaster of Hawaii, and that present publisher Thurston Twigg-Smith is an outstanding philatelist.

Appraisal of the collection was made by H. R. Harmer Inc., international auctioneers who refused to announce the value of the stamps involved. However, it might be said that two of the stamps alone could sell for $150,000 each in today's market.

The American Air Mail Society will hold its 1972 convention in Cincinnati from Aug. 25 to 27. The convention will be held in conjunction with CIN-PEX, the Cincinnati Philatelic Society's Annual Stamp Exhibition and Bourse.

VIRGINIA PARK BOARD PROPOSES SUMMER PROGRAM

VIRGINIA — The Virginia Park Board met April 26 at the Virginia Public Library.

Acting President William Garver called the meeting to order. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and accepted. Roy Roberts presented the financial report which was approved.

Secretary Marge Darland was instructed to rent a post office box to receive park board mail.

The primary interest of the board is acquiring and developing land into a park area. There are many details to be worked out and requirements to be met, but progress is being made.

Two ordinances, one on By-Laws for Park Use and the other on General Organization of the Park Board, were approved. Marc Dahman will present these to the City Council for approval.

Once again this year, reservations for the pavilion at the Jennie Marr Dunaway Park are to be made with Bill Garver.

The board discussed the possibility of a summer program with Roy Roberts explaining that of Beardsdown as an example. A committee will meet to plan a program and present it at the next meeting.

The meeting was adjourned with the land committee remaining with Roy Roberts for discussion.

Secret Study Assesses Outcome In Vietnam On Other Nations

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence experts told President Nixon three years ago a settlement resulting in a communist-controlled South Vietnam "would not necessarily unhinge" the rest of Southeast Asia, according to a secret government study.

The intelligence officials said Hanoi's attempt to push gains in the two most vulnerable area countries, Cambodia and Laos, probably would be limited to political agitation, at least at the outset.

Hanoi would be preoccupied, for a time at least, with the formidable task of consolidating communist rule in South Vietnam," the experts said.

The assessment was included as a response to 28 policy questions studied by administration agencies in reviewing general aspects of the Vietnam situation.

The study, classified secret, was coordinated by the National Security Council and given the title National Security Study Memorandum 1.

The more-than-500-page document has been leaked to various news agencies with The Associated Press obtaining, at its own request, a copy from syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

The contradictory nature of most of the assessments provided by the various contributors was part of the findings dealing with Southeast Asia after Vietnam.

As the summary prepared by the NSC under direction of Henry A. Kissinger put it: "There continues to be a NIE (National Intelligence Estimate) on this subject... tended to downgrade the so-called 'domino theory'.

"The NIE dissenters believe that an unfavorable settlement would stimulate the communists to become more active elsewhere and that it will be difficult to resist making some accommodation to the pressure then generated."

With some exceptions, those downplaying the adverse effects of a communist government in Saigon were the civilian agencies—State Department, Defense Department and the Central Intelligence Agency.

The opponents were the military advisers, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the armed services intelligence community.

The civilians were skeptical about policy, while the military was optimistic about South Vietnam's fighting ability and worried about effects of a communist victory or political supremacy.

This disagreement was sharply etched in the Kissinger summary when it stated: "The emphatic differences between U.S. agencies on the RVNAF (South Vietnamese army) outweigh the points of agreement."

The State Department quoted with approval a "CIA memorandum (that) concluded that it would be at least two years, and perhaps longer, before ARVN (South Vietnamese army) would become an effective fighting force."

The summary said "the military community gives much more weight to the RVNAF's ability to improve, but not to the RVNAF's ability to improve."

The civilian experts, as expressed by the State Department, said: "We believe that the more crucial problems—leadership, morale, discipline and training—are long-term and highly complex and we are not confident that significant improvement in all these fields will be accomplished during the next year or so."

At another point, the study quoted civilian experts as stating:

"Under current and foreseeable circumstances, it will take probably a minimum of two years before structural and technical reforms can make any substantial contribution toward RVNAF fighting effectiveness. The summary concludes that the RVNAF could not, either now or even when fully modernized, handle both the VC and a sizeable level of NVA forces without U.S. combat support on the form of air, helicopters, artillery, logistics and some ground support."

Even if the North Vietnamese were used only as "fillers" in VC units, the civilian intelligence community found, "it would probably be necessary to provide the RVNAF with sufficient U.S. combat support to make up for its deficiencies... The presence of substantial numbers of North Vietnamese out U.S. combat support in the absence of any U.S. combat-troop involvement, would tend to negate even short-term, not to mention long-term, prospects for the RVNAF."

The summary reports that, paradoxically, the military believes "that RVNAF would not be able to cope with purely information in 1972. The summary concludes that "all agencies agree that the RVNAF could not, either now or even when fully modernized, handle both the VC and a sizeable level of NVA forces without U.S. combat support on the form of air, helicopters, artillery, logistics and some ground support."

As to the effectiveness of the American support at the time of the study, there was marked disagreement in the documents over the value of the U.S. air raids against the North before a bombing halt was ordered in 1968.

The military said the B52 raids were more effective than credited by the civilian contributors and generally hurt the North Vietnamese.

The summary put the disagreement this way:

"The military believes 'that a vigorous bombing campaign could choke off enough supplies to Hanoi to make her stop fighting, while (the Defense Department) and CIA see North Vietnam continuing the struggle even against unlimited bombing.'"

British Cuisine Noted For Good Meat Pies

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
British cuisine has always been noted for its good meat pies. And the following recipe, developed by an English home economist now working in this country, deserves its share of fame. When tried at our house, it was gobbled up. However, we managed to stow away a couple of portions and found they reheated beautifully.

Why do we call this dish a "plate pie?" Because plate pie is an English term for a two-crust pie in contrast to a deep-dish pie. Typically English, too, is the filling made with beef and mushrooms and seasoned with Worcestershire sauce.

ENGLISH PLATE PIE
2 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion (finely chopped), ½ cup
1 pound ground lean beef
1 cup (generous) chopped mushrooms, ¼ pound
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

½ teaspoon salt
1 beef bouillon cube
½ cup boiling water
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons cold water
1 package (11 ounces) pie crust mix
1 egg
1 tablespoon milk
In a 10-inch skillet heat butter; add onion and cook gently until softened. Stir in ground beef; cook, mashing with a fork to crumble, until meat loses its red color. Stir in mushrooms, Worcestershire and salt; cook for 2 minutes.

Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water; add to beef mixture. Stir flour with cold water to make a smooth paste; stir into beef mixture. Stirring constantly heat to boiling point; cook for 2 minutes. Remove from heat; set aside.

Prepare piecrust mix as label directs. Use half to line bottom of an 8-inch pie plate. Roll out remaining half to cover pie.

Fill pie shell with beef mixture; cover with remaining pastry. Flute edges and slit top for steam to escape.
Beat egg with milk to blend. Brush over top pastry.
Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until crust is well browned—40 to 45 minutes. Let cool on wire rack for 10 minutes before serving.
Makes 6 servings.

HARVEY SCOTT IS ST. OLAF HONOREE
NORTHFIELD, Minn. — Harvey D. Scott III, of 18 Pitter Place, was among more than 1,200 St. Olaf College students who were honored for excellence in scholarship at the college's annual Honors Convocation May 3.

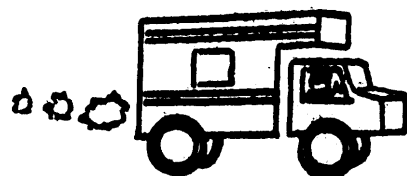

In order to qualify for the honor distinction, a student must maintain a 3.0 grade average (on a 4.0 scale)—equivalent to a B grade or better. Others receiving recognition at the Honors Day convocation were those who have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity, and those who have been awarded academic fellowships or scholarships.

Dr. Bardwell L. Smith, dean of Carleton College, was the principal speaker at the convocation.

RECORD HIGH
CHICAGO (AP) — A membership on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange has been sold for an all time record high of $90,500, it was announced. The seat was purchased by Raymond Resnick, an executive vice president of a New York Stock Exchange member firm.

SEWAGE AID
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — State aid payments totaling about $250,000 for sewage treatment projects were released to Forrest, McHenry, Rushville, Spring Valley and Greater Chicago units, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said.

Youngster Feled On Birthday

CHANDLERVILLE—A birthday party was held Tuesday, April 18 after school at the home of Bruce Potts to celebrate his 9th birthday.

Boys from his third grade class enjoyed birthday cake, ice cream and kool-aid, following games and prizes won by Phil Thomas and Sheldon Bartell.

Report Secret Contacts At Paris Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — A critical session of the Vietnam peace talks was set for Thursday amid unconfirmed reports that secret contacts were already under way between the United States and North Vietnam.

A Paris newspaper said the United States had proposed in a secret exchange with North Vietnam that a seven-day truce be put into effect, apparently to be followed by a general cease-fire.

U.S. officials here and in Washington wrote off the truce and cease-fire report as "completely without foundation." The U.S. peace talks delegation spokesman, Stephen Ledogar, would not, however, comment on reports that secret talks had begun. North Vietnamese officials noted inquiries about the report but had no comment.

said it had obtained its information from a "good source" which was not further identified. It reported the North Vietnamese were in apparent agreement but problems had cropped up on terms of a cease-fire that presumably would follow a truce.

The United States proposed an all-Indochina cease-fire as far back as October 1970. It was rejected by the Communists, who instead proposed last July a cease-fire between U.S. and Communist command forces after the United States has fixed a troop withdrawal date. A cease-fire with Saigon forces would go into effect when a coalition government was formed.

The possibility loomed that the United States would break off the talks Thursday or shift tactics. A new move by Hanoi or the Viet Cong could not be excluded.

The U.S. delegation chief, William J. Porter, demanded last week that North Vietnam end its invasion of South Vietnam. The North Vietnamese delegation leader, Xuan Thuy, replied that the U.S. charge of an invasion "is utterly absurd."

Porter gave the Hanoi delegate a week to come up with what would be considered a satisfactory reply, and added:

"It will not be practical to hold meetings if you continue to refuse to deal with the substance of both the present invasion and general problems of peace."

Observers were uncertain about what course Porter would take at the 149th session of the talks, but these options seemed open:

Porter could extend his period for North Vietnam to respond to his halt the invasion

Deer Visits Pike Store After Hours

PITTSFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—A deer broke into the Strauss department store Wednesday, smeared blood on about eight mirrors, then left by breaking out through a display window.

Authorities said the deer entered the store by smashing through the glass in the front door and cut himself, apparently on the neck. He roamed through the store and apparently was attracted to his image in the mirrors which he smeared with blood.

Except for a trail of blood, however, the deer upset nothing in the store. He jumped over a partition to get out through the window but did not disturb four mannequins in the window.

Two persons on the town square saw the deer enter and leave the store. They said he was inside about 10 minutes.

THURSDAY, MAY 4—Born today, you are an exceedingly critical person—but you are not one to criticize another without cause or without suggestions as to how he can better his product or its value. Progressive and highly inventive, you are at your best and happiest when you are involved in some project whose nature is basically speculative. You enjoy the risk inherent in an investment of money, time, or effort where the outcome is unknown. Mystery appeals to you—the more so when at its solution there is a possibility of gain.

He could walk out of the talks in a huff. He could announce another indefinite suspension of the talks, as he did March 23.

He could swallow what he calls North Vietnamese intransigence at the conference because of other developments.

This could be confirmation that secret talks are under way or will be soon between the Hanoi Politburo member, Le Duc Tho and Henry A. Kissinger, president Nixon's national security adviser, or some other highly placed American.

He said he was happy to be back to "continue negotiations with the American side."

Another development appeared possible: a new or revised version of Communist peace proposals to keep the plenary sessions going. It was noted that within a week of Tho's return to Paris last summer, the Viet Cong came up with a seven-point peace plan.

Demo

Humphrey talked of bypassing some of the intervening tests and going straight to California, which will award 271 delegates—18 per cent of the 1,509 needed for nomination—to the winner of its primary.

Humphrey had clung to a 12,000-14,000-vote margin in Ohio before the erroneous figures put McGovern to within 1,397 votes.

Only 420 of Cleveland and Cuyahoga County's 1,788 polling places were reported in the 9 p.m. tabulation and only 500 from Hamilton County (Cincinnati) and its 1,156 polling places.

The vote was moving slowly, too, in Akron and Dayton, both industrial cities. McGovern has claimed big inroads among Ohio blue collar workers.

The tabulation with 9,336 of the state's 12,648 polling places reported left Humphrey holding the 38 at-large Ohio delegates to the Democratic National Convention. The candidate who captures the at-large group appeared certain to win the majority of the state's 153 delegates to the national convention.

Besides leading for the at-large posts, Humphrey was ahead in nine of the 23 Ohio congressional districts, with 42 delegates, for a total of 80.

McGovern, leading in 11 districts, headed for 55 delegates, a strong minority of the state's delegation even if he failed to win the at-large vote.

Dated: May 3, 1972. WILLIAM E. CHIPMAN Commissioner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission Wednesday froze all prices of more than half of America's largest firms and said they face price cuts and possible fines unless they quickly file overdue reports.

Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said nearly 1,600 firms haven't filed required reports that were due last Monday.

All of these firms are technically in violation of Price Commission regulations now. Grayson said each firm would be notified individually and given a grace period of five working days to file the reports.

After that, he said, the commission will order price cuts and ask the Justice Department to sue for civil fines of $2,500. He said it would be up to the Justice Department whether or not to seek multiple fines for individual firms.

Price Commission rules require that all firms with more than $50 million in yearly sales file quarterly reports. Firms that have raised prices must give details, and those that haven't must say so.

Grayson made the announcement in a wide-ranging news conference that covered a number of topics.

He said the commission sees sufficient easing of food prices and won't tighten regulations for now. But he said the commission will set up a unit to watch food supply and demand for possible problems and will hold frequent meetings with food wholesalers and retailers to discuss prices.

New regulations requiring manufacturers to pass along more productivity gains to consumers have gone into effect, Grayson said. He estimated the new rules, first decided several weeks ago, might reduce the average allowable price increase from the present 8.2 per cent to somewhere between 2.6 per cent and 2.9 per cent.

The commission this week reaffirmed its rule that limits profit margins of firms that raise prices. It rejected, 4-2, a move to apply the limit to firms that haven't raised prices, Grayson said.

He estimated the new rules, first decided several weeks ago, might reduce the average allowable price increase from the present 8.2 per cent to somewhere between 2.6 per cent and 2.9 per cent.

The commission this week reaffirmed its rule that limits profit margins of firms that raise prices. It rejected, 4-2, a move to apply the limit to firms that haven't raised prices, Grayson said.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Sidelstep any situation which you know from experience would upset you. Be careful not to be the one to upset your own apple cart, however.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Another's attempt to deceive you may succeed if you are careless enough to allow your fondest wishes to be known. Be wise; keep things to yourself.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Creative work should take your mind off your problems this morning. There are many ways of persuading yourself to accept disappointment; try one.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Focus your attention on matters that could very well change things on the home front. Afternoon hours see you vulnerable where criticism is concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—The wise Virgo will cut down on expenses now—before it becomes absolutely necessary. Get yourself into the habit of counting pennies.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Friends of long standing can be of exceptional help to you this morning. A telephone conversation can do much to relieve your mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—A pleasure trip late in the day is indicated. Don't be alarmed should you have to change your plans where other people are involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Avoid anything that smacks of a business trip. This is an excellent time to see how far you can go it alone on the new project.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Danger to another brings out the best in you. Take care, however, that your generosity of spirit doesn't make you go overboard materially.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Unfinished business must come before the new project, no matter how interesting the latter may be. Consider you're lucky to be given a fresh start.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Make your plans now for the home improvement projects you want to undertake this weekend. Members of the opposite sex cause minor problems.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Where accidents are concerned, take no chances. This is no time to try to prove your invulnerability; you're only human.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission Wednesday froze all prices of more than half of America's largest firms and said they face price cuts and possible fines unless they quickly file overdue reports.

Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said nearly 1,600 firms haven't filed required reports that were due last Monday.

All of these firms are technically in violation of Price Commission regulations now. Grayson said each firm would be notified individually and given a grace period of five working days to file the reports.

After that, he said, the commission will order price cuts and ask the Justice Department to sue for civil fines of $2,500. He said it would be up to the

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Always looking ahead, because that's where the money is, Wall Street suddenly has been surprised from the rear by those Phase 2 controls on profit margins.

The mystery is why it should have been surprised, because the limitations were in effect ever since the end of the 90-day freeze last November. They weren't highly publicized, but they did exist.

The most significant of these regulations clearly limits the margin of profits on sales to the average of the best two of the past three years, and calls for price rollbacks, penalties and even rebates if the rate is exceeded.

Still when those scintillating income reports for the first quarter were released there were few analysts in Wall Street who bothered to ask if they were in violation of the guidelines.

A search through many of them revealed no mention at all. And the very few who showed concern ended by downplaying the impact of the guidelines. Nobody seemed worried.

As it now appears, a good many of the profits' statements are in violation. C. Jackson Grayson, Price Commission chairman, estimates that 10 per cent of early returns for the first quarter fall into that category.

In addition, it seems that a good many companies were as indifferent to the matter of guidelines as was Wall Street in ignoring the potential impact on prices. They filed late or failed to file completely.

What Grayson has reminded industry is that it can no longer take the easy but inflationary way to profits, that it cannot hope to make its income statement look good simply by raising prices.

Instead, it must earn those profits by increasing its sales. Any company able and willing to sell more can continue to show bigger profit figures. Selling, however, is hard work, much harder than changing price tags.

The realization stunned The Street—five months delayed.

What has become clear from this misunderstanding is that a brand new measure of corporate health must be used by stock analysts. The profit-sales ratio is now as important as price-earnings or any other measure.

To judge a company's profit outlook by the old measures alone can be terribly misleading. A new morality has been introduced and a yardstick for measuring it also has been supplied.

New Car Repair Manual Clear, Lucid, Complete

By CARLTON SMITH

There seem to be no statistics on how many Americans have been driven into either the poorhouse or the madhouse by their dealings with auto mechanics, but any car owner must certainly put the possibility among life's major hazards.

How can you protect your pocketbook and your sanity? Any number of ways. For example, give your car to the Salvation Army and buy a pony cart. But among the more practical solutions is a version of the back-to-nature movement: Be your own mechanic.

The trouble with most car repair manuals is that they appear to have been written, intentionally or otherwise, for people who already possess considerable mechanical skills and familiarity with a car's innards. You may be given perfectly adequate instructions on how to replace the clutch pressure springs — but how are you supposed to know, to begin with, that new pressure springs is what the clutch needs? For that matter, your first question might be: "What and where is the clutch?"

SOYBEANS EASE FROM EARLY HIGHS

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans futures advanced nearly 2 cents after the opening on the Chicago Board of Trade day, then fell back under light profit-taking.

Soybean oil and meal prices also eased from early highs. Wheat futures were down around 1 cent and corn 1/2 of a cent.

Oats were a small fraction lower. Iced broilers were little changed and trade very slow.

The government reported that soybean oil stocks in March showed an increase over the previous month, but the trade had expected a larger figure.

It was thought that usage had slowed down for a time. Thus when the report was issued, it was considered constructive on soybeans and oil.

Minutes after soybeans advanced 1 1/4 cents and oil 12 points, local professionals took profits. A gain of some 50 points in meal futures also was pared.

The winter wheat crop continues to look well to harvesting farmers and prospects appeared improved for a big crop. This tended to influence buyers early in the session and buyers were rather timid in the wheat pit.

Weather showed some improvement, tending to influence sellers in corn and oats.

After about an hour, soybeans were 1/2 cent a bushel lower to 1/4 higher, May 3.47 1/2; wheat was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, May 1.63 1/2; corn was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, May 1.22 1/2 and oats were unchanged to 1/4 lower, May 68 1/2 cents.

Public health authorities estimate that infant mortality in the United States declined in 1971 to a record low of about 19 deaths per 1,000 live births.

A "how to" book has now come along which you might, with some confidence, hand to your maiden aunt and ask her if she would please keep the car in repair. In this book, which assumes she doesn't know a clutch from a crutch, the section on this subject leads off with, "First, let's understand why a clutch is necessary...." Your maiden aunt, if she can read above fourth-grade level, learns what a clutch is and how it works. The generous use of good photos and drawings would have her under the car in no time, replacing those weak pressure springs.

The question of what to fix, of course, comes ahead of how to fix it. The book is exemplary in this respect. Here are several pages, for example, tabulating noises that can be interpreted to diagnose trouble — the meaning of 51 different growls, hums, knocks, squeaks, thumps and rattles. Other troubleshooting charts around — 34 symptoms, for instance, of brake troubles.

Quite sensibly, this book for do-it-yourselfers was conceived to cover those adjustments and repairs that an average car owner can make at home, without expensive tools or special equipment. To keep amateurs out of trouble, there's sound advice on what jobs should NOT be tackled.

The book is a model of clear, lucid and complete step-by-step explanation. If you're told to loosen the frammiis screw, there's a photo with an arrow showing you that the frammiis screw is this one, not that one over to the left.

If editor Paul Weissler is responsible for the text and illustrations, he may have produced the home repair manual that will keep America's cars running, despite all efforts of our professional mechanics to the contrary. The book is "Auto Repairs You Can Make" (320 pages, hardcover, $8.95), and if your bookseller doesn't have it yet, he can order it from Arco Publishing Co., New York.

by TOM TIEDE
PLEIKU, Vietnam (NEA)

Except for this brief mention, the world will little note the passing of Te Hoa Binh, age seven months. The infant, daughter of a Cham Moi tribesman, was killed during the first days of North Vietnam's spring offensive. She was shot through the head by a stray bullet during an obscure, nameless battle.

One more dead here. Quickly forgotten.

The world, of course, can't be expected to note each of the individual sorrows of this bleak war. The suffering has been too immense for that. People can respond, usually sympathetically, to the plight of one victim of cruelty—or sometimes many victims, if their disaster is shocking enough. But when the situation involves millions, drawn out over decades, the events are simply too catastrophic to register on any humane, day to day, life to life basis.

Thus, few really know the distress of Vietnam.

It has just been too much.

There are the statistics, certainly. Anyone can collect them. The figures are distorted and often imprecise, for many reasons, but in the main they give a fair peek at the human shrieking that has taken place here during the last decade of war. The United States, to start with, has sent almost 2.5 million men to this torture since 1961. The first to die, officially, but not actually, was James Davis, a 25-year-old Army radio operator who was killed in a guerrilla ambush three days before Christmas, 1961. Since then, more than 55,800 have been killed, 80 per cent under hostile conditions. Some 303,000 more have been wounded, of whom about half have been hospitalized and 3 per cent totally disabled.

The figures are hardly warm. They don't remind us of the unrecorded suffering. The 10 per cent of Vietnam veterans who can't find work. The 4 to 5 per cent who picked up a narcotics problem. The thousands who have had their wives divorce them or girls abandon them. The intolerable question of the 1,600 who've been captured or are missing in action. Or the incalculable after effects of combat which, in at least one case, led a Vietnam veteran back in the United States to kill a man and then strip his body as if still at war.

Then there are the calculations for the South Vietnamese military forces. Officially, almost 140,000 dead, more than 350,000 wounded, 30,000 missing in action, 65,000 disabled. One of the latter fellows, named Lam, lost both legs in the war. He had no medical treatment and healed so badly his people sent him to a leper colony. He escaped after some anguished weeks. Now he's a beggar in Pleiku. He gets around on a board on a roller skate. He eats out of garbage piles. And he can't remember, much, what he was like before.

Also, there are the enemy figures. The U.S. command says that an estimated 825,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have been killed. "And for every one who dies, at least two others are wounded." About 30,000 of the other side have been taken prisoner, some of whom have been tortured, some of whom have been tossed out of helicopters, and at least one, whom the statistics don't mention, who was bludgeoned by his own decapitated leg before being shot dead.

Finally, most grievous and melancholy, there are statistics for the people themselves. There have been at least 300,000 civilians killed, since 1961, in South Vietnam. Perhaps a million overall have been wounded. Three-and-a-half to five million have been displaced. The War Veterans Ministry says the nation has at least 90,000 war widows, and twice that number of parents of dead soldiers. Orphanage officials believe there are in excess of 350,000 parentless children. Social services people say young women in the country may have given birth to 15,000 to 25,000 illegitimate, now unwanted, GI babies. And so there it is. Perhaps four-and-a-half million men,

The Weeders' Guide

By EARL ARONSON

AP Newsfeatures

Do you have trouble distinguishing between seedlings and weeds when your first flowering plants emerge from the earth in spring?

Sow a few seeds of each variety indoors, properly marked for identity, at the same time seeds are planted outdoors. Those planted indoors will come up first and you'll recognize the plant when you see it outdoors.

You can increase summer squash yield with a mulch of aluminum foil to give biological control to delay virus disease. The Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station reports plants mulched with aluminum foil produced double those on bare soil.

The experimenters found that biological control of aphids affecting crop plants could be achieved with reflective mulches. Reflected skylight from aluminum foil discourages aphids from alighting to feed on plants, delaying the spread of virus diseases.

Virus diseases of summer squash reportedly "explode" in late August, infecting a field within a few days. The plants are stunted and the yields reduced.

Black plastic was found to be ineffective.

Clump perennials such as chrysanthemums, phlox, Shasta daisies, hostas, asters, geraniums and Veronica may be divided early in spring. Give them some help. To improve the rooting of new clumps, add a plant food to the water and apply at planting time.

In transplanting iris, wet the leaves, trim leaves back fan shape before replanting tubers and fertilize with a flower and garden plantfood to help roots reestablish.

Wondering about preventing potatoes from sprouting? It isn't easy. Storage in a moderately cool (40 to 50 degrees, moist area will help somewhat.

You can prevent sprouting by spraying green potatoes with maleic hydrazide (MH-30), the Purdue University agricultural staff advises, one week after blossom drop or four to six weeks before the expected date of digging. But you cannot use such potatoes for planting the next year.

The American Association of Nurserymen estimates 180 million acres of land annually lose topsoil through action of wind or water, a $1 billion loss in the U.S. This is blamed largely on loss of groundcover.

Spring is the best time for planting groundcover but often heavy rains wash it out before it is established. To stop this, spread a thatch of hay or straw several inches deep on the ground before planting and top it with a network of strings tied to stakes to prevent the thatch from blowing away. Pull aside the hay or straw where you want to set a plant, then re-

Cleveland Guides Cards To 2-1 Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ed Crosby stroked a two-run single and Reggie Cleveland pitched a six-hitter in leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 2-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night. The slim Crosby, a 6-foot-2 shortstop inserted in the lineup to spell light-hitting Dal Maxvill, decided a mound duel between Cleveland and Cincinnati's Jack Billingham, 0-4, in the fourth inning. Joe Torre started the rally with an infield hit, Ted Simmons singled and Billingham walked. Jose Hague to load the bases with none out. Billingham got Luis Melendez on a liner back to the mound but Crosby singled on the next pitch to chase home Torre and Simmons. AAU Head Rips Amateur Rules

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Our rules for being an amateur athlete are like our sex laws," says Jack Kelly. "If every illegal sex act was policed properly, 75 per cent of the population would be in jail. The same goes for amateurs. There are very, very few real amateurs left in any sport." Called "outspoken" ever since he took over as president of the Amateur Athletic Union last year, Kelly is formulating a plan to prevent a major defection of athletes from the AAU. One way, he says, "is by realizing that our amateur rules are archaic." He admits he's heard that many track and field stars may leave the AAU after this year's Olympic Games. He knows they are frustrated by what Kelly calls "the old guard" of the AAU and he understands their feelings because he was an amateur rowing champion years ago. "I'm working on a manifesto for athletes," he says, "and I hope to get a lot of signatures on it from the athletes. Our amateur rules," he says, "are unenforceable. They are vague and usually only apply to the most prominent of athletes. If one guy robs a bank of $100,000 and another guy robs a bank of $75,000, both go to jail when they're caught. But that's not the case with amateur rules and that's unfair. I'm in favor of open track and field-including the Olympic Games. There, the only question would be a person's citizenship. After all, where do you draw the line on being an amateur. Is a college athlete, who gets a scholarship worth thousands of dollars, a pro? Is a track coach a pro? And what if that track coach is classified by his school as a 'teacher'? Now we're just talking semantics." Kelly, himself, violated the rules of amateurism in 1947 after winning the Henley Regatta. "They presented me with a solid silver replica of my racing shell. It was worth at least $1,500 but I didn't hock it or melt it down so it wasn't really worth that much in cash. But technically, from that day on, I was a pro," he said. Kelly says many of the AAU's old guard—"and a lot of them aren't really old, they just think that way"—may change their minds soon. Kelly urges athletes not to bolt his organization. "The chaos they'd create could only cause harm to the sport. I feel I know their problems and I feel they could be better helped by working in our organization. They've been frustrated in the past, I know, but I feel a modernization of the rules is long overdue and I think some of my views are gaining the upper hand."

Mets Drop Slumping Giants 8-5

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tommie Agee belted two doubles, scored twice and added a run-scoring single Wednesday to support the pitching of rookie left-hander Jon Matlack and lead the New York Mets to an 8-5 victory over the slumping San Francisco Giants. The Giants concluded one of the worst home stands in San Francisco major league history with a 2-11 record, remaining last in the West Division. Matlack, 3-0, was staked to a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Steve Stone, 0-2. Bud Harrelson led off with a walk and scored on Wayne Garrett's double. Garrett pulled his left hamstring muscle on the play and was replaced by Ted Martinez, who scored on Agee's single. Agee's first double chased Stone in the third and the Mets' center fielder scored on Cleon Jones' single. Two-out doubles by Agee and Rusty Staub added a run in the fourth off Ron Bryant. Matlack lost his shutout bid in the fifth as pinch-batter Bernie Williams walked and Chris Speier doubled when second baseman Martinez lost his high pop in the sun. New York scored four runs off Jerry Johnson in the eighth. Matlack was lifted in the eighth after Willie Mays' walk, Bonds' single and Dave Kingman's triple scored two runs. PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dock Ellis and Bruce Kison combined for a six-hitter and Rene Stennett drove in two runs with a triple as the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped a six-game losing streak and defeated the Houston Astros 3-2 Wednesday night. Ellis went six innings in his first start since April 20 because of a sore heel and allowed one run on four hits. The Pirates handed Ellis a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the first inning. Stennett, playing left field for ailing slugger Willie Stargell, continued his hot hitting for the Pirates. His triple in the second inning after Richie Hebner singled and Dave Cash walked built the lead to 3-0. Chicago Rips Braves Again By 12-1 Count

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams smashed a three-run homer and Jose Cardenal drove across five runs to back Fergy Jenkins' steady pitching as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Atlanta Braves 12-1 Wednesday. Williams' fifth-inning homer gave the Cubs a 7-0 lead and chased loser Pat Jarvis, who also was clubbed for three runs in the fourth and Jim Hickman's leadoff homer in the second. Jenkins, 2-2, blanked the Braves until the sixth when two walks enabled the Braves to fill the bases after Hank Aaron's leadoff single. But they got only one run on Darrell Evans' sacrifice fly. In the Cub fourth, with two out, Hickman singled and scored on Rick Monday's double. Cardenal tripled, scoring Monday, and Randy Hundley's single scored Cardenal. Field Shaping For 98th Derby

By BOB COOPER Associated Press Sports Writer LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A field of 14 to 19 thoroughbreds shaped up Wednesday for Saturday's 98th Kentucky Derby, with the difference depending on a bruise, a cruise, some clues and the flip of a coin. Elliott Burch, trainer for Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stable, said he was awaiting some clue from rider Braulio Baeza before he decides the status of Derby Trial winner Key to the Mint. "I'll talk with Baeza and then Mr. Mellon, but I can't make any decision until sometime Thursday. I may not know even then and might enter him and scratch later if I want," Burch said. Entries for the world's most famous horse race must be made Thursday morning, about 55 hours before the call to the post for the $125,000-added, 1 1/4-mile classic. Sensitive Music, owned by Forrest H. Lindsay, and trained by Grover Stephens was the first official entry when Stephens handed the completed form to racing secretary Allan "Doc" Lavin at 2:01 p.m. Wednesday. Lavin said Stephens told him "He didn't want to forget." Sensitive Music was second in the Blue Grass Stakes last Thursday at Kennelton and the horse expected to be the Derby favorite, Riva Ridge. Burch said the other half of the Rokeby entry, Head of the River, is a definite starter, with Mike Hole, his rider the three races, to be in the saddle again. Gene Cilio, trainer for Emanuel Lizio's Three Nine Stable's U Pos Ent, said his decision depended on a cruise around the Churchill Downs track slated for the son of Bosun Thursday morning. "Right now, we're still in there, but it all will depend on how he works tomorrow morning," he said. Frank J. Carlin, head of the syndicate that owns Bold Music, said the colt's owner bruis-

Lakers In Lead Via 107-96 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles' Jerry West became the first player in National Basketball Association playoff history to score 4,000 career points as the Lakers held off a fourth-quarter New York comeback and defeated the Knicks 107-96 Wednesday night, gaining a 2-1 advantage in their championship series.

Game No. 4 in the best-of-seven set will be played Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

West, named to play in the NBA's All-Star game in each of his 12 seasons in the league, and the Most Valuable Player in this year's midseason classic, scored 21 points against the Knicks. His last two points, on a jump shot from the right side with just over three minutes remaining, gave him 4,001 points in 133 playoff games.

Towering Wilt Chamberlain, the 7-foot-1½, 275-pound center, led the Lakers with 26 points, one more than Gail Goodrich.

Walt Frazier topped the Knicks with 25 points, while Jerry Lucas added 23.

Knicks' forward Dave DeBusschere who started despite a pulled muscle in his right side above the hip, suffered in Sunday's second game, played 20 minutes in the first half but generally was ineffective. He missed all six of his field goal attempts but grabbed nine rebounds, high for New York.

However, DeBusschere did not play in the second half, when the Lakers broke open the game with a 20-5 spurt in the first six minutes.

The burst pulled the Lakers to a 72-52 lead and the Knicks never came closer than seven points—late in the fourth quarter.

The Knicks took a lead in the first quarter, which they maintained until West made a jumper with 3:03 remaining in the second period to give the Lakers the lead for the first time 43-42.

Home Ice Aids Rangers' Hopes

NEW YORK (AP) — Hoping that a change in location will bring with it a change in results, the New York Rangers were back home Wednesday, preparing for Game 3 of their National Hockey League Stanley Cup showdown with the Boston Bruins.

The Bruins took the first two games in the best-of-seven series in Boston and now the Rangers get the home ice edge—if there is any—for Game 3 Thursday night and Game 4 Sunday afternoon.

"There's something to the home ice advantage—definitely," said Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers. "But in a seventh game situation, I wouldn't be concerned about it."

That's because the seventh game, if this series goes that far, would be in Boston.

"We knew before this series began that we'd have to win all our games at home and one up there," Francis continued.

Both of the first two games have been decided by a single goal, in each case scored in the latter stages of the third period. Ace Bailey got the winner with 2:16 to go in Boston's 6-3 opening game victory and Ken Hodge's goal with 8:07 left gave the Bruins their 2-1 victory in Game 2 Tuesday night.

Francis has decided on several changes for Thursday's third game.

"I can tell you for sure that I'll be dressing both Ab De-Marco and Phil Goyette," the Ranger boss said. "I don't know who will sit it out yet."

Neither Goyette, a veteran center lured out of retirement two months ago, nor DeMarco, a rookie defenseman, played in either game in Boston.

Francis also said he would restore rookie Gene Carr to a regular spot on a line with Walt Tkaczuk and Bill Fairbairn and that center Jean Ratelle, returning from a broken ankle, would be used more often than he had been in the first two games.

Blue-Finley Talks Dropped To Vanity

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Suddenly the money became secondary. Something else emerged much more important at the end.

Vanity. Pure vanity. The plain old garden variety type. That was what the Vida Blue-Charlie Finley fuss deteriorated into at the very end.

They had agreed in principle, then they stood around arguing how the press release should read. Each wanted to read his way. Each wanted to have the last word.

Vida Blue was to get a base salary of $50,000, plus $8,000 for some vague college scholarship which he may or may not ever use, plus another $5,000 which he could consider a bonus for his performance last year or the 10 per cent fee for his attorney, Robert Gerst.

In all, the total comes to $63,000 and that part of it was hunky-dory.

But that's where personal vanity came in.

Now everybody began thinking about the media.

The Paramount Consideration Nobody really had cared much about the media before, but all of a sudden the money was pushed into the background and the press release became the paramount consideration.

Vida Blue, who originally had set his cap for $92,500, didn't want to look bad.

Neither did Charlie Finley who has friends, too. He didn't want them laughing at him. He had informed the whole world he'd pay his 23-year-old left-handed ace $50,000 "and not a cent more."

At first Blue suggested no figure be announced. That idea was quickly abandoned as being impractical. Figures would be tossed around anyway and they would be wrong figures for the most part.

Okay, Blue and his attorney said, then the announcement should say Vida signed for $63,000.

Nothing doing, snapped Charlie Finley, who wanted it to say Blue signed for $50,000, with those $8,000 and $5,000 figures buried someplace on page three if they were mentioned at all.

Uh, uh, said Blue to that.

So the deadlock continued and while both principals alternately burned and sulked, Bowie Kuhn, the baseball commissioner, kept drumming his fingers on the table and telling Finley, "Bend a little, Charlie."

"Tell him to bend, not me," Finley would reply with understandable justification.

Nobody Richer or Bigger Actually nobody came out of this affair any bigger or richer for the experience.

Vida Blue didn't get any where near the $92,500 he said he wanted. His salary will begin as of May 2 so that means he'll lose 27 days' pay from his $50,000 base, or approximately $7,100.

By his own say so, it'll take him another three or four weeks before he's ready to pitch and even when he is there's no guarantee he'll start right up where he left off last year. Blue was 6-1 this time last year. Remember when Billy Martin said he wouldn't win even 20 this year? Martin may turn out to be right.

Charlie Finley, it has been rather generally agreed, made a fair first offer to Blue but then undid a lot of that with some of the hidebound statements he issued. They only made Blue more bent on having his way.

Bowie Kuhn, accused of being too passive during the players' strike, didn't really enhance his image that much generally with his mediation efforts between Blue and Finley.

Reflects Hero Worship If anything, the commissioner may be reflecting a little hero worship inside him. First he was all for Donn Clendenon in his hassle with Houston, then for Hawk Harrelson when he wouldn't report to Cleveland and now he turns up backing Vida Blue's with his problem.

Blue, who'll be back in an Oakland uniform immediately, says he expects "maybe a word or two" from the other dugouts.

Finley can also expect the same from Kuhn.

Remember during the players' strike when Finley was upset by Kuhn's do-nothing attitude and said, in essence, "I'm gonna go to New York and rap on the commissioner's door, and if he doesn't open it up I'm gonna take a hatchet and chop it down and force him to call a meeting."

Whether you remember it or not, Bowie Kuhn does, and now that Vida Blue is signed, he has a word for Charlie Finley. The word could be "fine"—perhaps as much as $10,000.

ATLANTA HOCKEY CLUB BUYS FARM TEAM

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The new Atlanta franchise in the National Hockey League has acquired the Omaha team in the Central Hockey League, and will operate a farm team here in the 1972-1973 season it was announced Wednesday.

Okner and Noll were the day's opening witnesses before the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, which is holding hearings on a bill to allow the two pro cage leagues to merge.

"But with such a poor performance at the gate, we wonder how deep this public interest lies. We reluctantly are led to conclude that if several ABA teams are about to fold, it is because they are playing in cities in which there is just very little demand for professional basketball games."

Okner and Noll were the day's opening witnesses before the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, which is holding hearings on a bill to allow the two pro cage leagues to merge.

Proponents of the measure "disastrous bidding war" between the leagues. They say that is the reason several teams are in danger of folding,

Lee's Hit Lifts San Diego Past Expos In 14th

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Leron Lee greeted reliever Denny Lemaster with a run-scoring single with two out in the 14th inning Wednesday that lifted the San Diego Padres to a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Don Mason, batting for winning pitcher Ed Acosta, opened the 14th with a single and Enzo Hernandez was the runner at first following two forceouts. Hernandez stole second and Lemaster, a left-hander, replaced Tom Walker to face Lee, a left-hand hitter. But the strategy failed when Lee singled to center.

The Expos had tied the score in the ninth on Ron Hunt's infield hit and Bob Bailey's triple.

San Diego's Clay Kirby and Montreal's Mike Torrez pitched scoreless ball through six innings, with Kirby holding the Expos hitless but Hunt, hitless in 21 at-bats, led off the seventh with a double, and scored on Ron Fairley's single.

Torrez was relieved by Mike Marshall in the eighth after Ole Brown singled and Fred Kendall walked. The runners advanced on Marshall's wild pitch throw and a walk to pinch hitter Larry Stahl loaded the bases.

Brown scored the tying run when he beat first baseman Mike Jorgensen's throw to the plate on Derrel Thomas' grounder, a call the Expos disputed. The Padres took a 2-1 lead when Kendall scored on a squeeze bunt by Hernandez.

ABA's Failure To Draw Fans Prime Danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Basketball Association's failure to draw fans, and not the bidding war with the rival National Basketball Association, is the prime reason some ABA teams are in danger of folding, a Senate subcommittee was told Wednesday.

"Despite charging less than the price of a movie ticket, these teams are playing to mostly empty seats," said Dr. Roger Noll, and Dr. Benjamin Okner, economists on leave from the Brookings Institution.

"The leagues have raised the specter of widespread failure of teams as the major reason for permitting the merger," they said. "They implicitly are claiming that there is a strong public interest in preserving all 28 teams."

"But with such a poor performance at the gate, we wonder how deep this public interest lies. We reluctantly are led to conclude that if several ABA teams are about to fold, it is because they are playing in cities in which there is just very little demand for professional basketball games."

Okner and Noll were the day's opening witnesses before the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, which is holding hearings on a bill to allow the two pro cage leagues to merge.

Tolan Happier With Good Legs

By PAUL LeBAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I'm even more pleased with my running than with my hitting," said Bobby Tolan, making a comeback after two injury setbacks last year.

The statement of the 26-year-old Cincinnati Reds centerfielder was surprising because his .446 batting mark leads the majors through Tuesday's games.

"But," said Tolan after cracking three hits including a home run against the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night, "I always felt that I could hit. The question was the pins."

A .318 hitter in 1970, his second season with the Reds, Tolan also led the National League with 57 stolen bases before misfortune struck not once but twice in 1971.

While participating in an off-season basketball game, the fleet outfielder suffered a torn Achilles tendon and missed the start of the baseball season.

Then, while he was running in the outfield May 7 at Los Angeles, the tendon snapped again and forced an operation.

"I took extra time this time making sure I was ready," said Tolan, who sat out all of last summer and worked hard in the winter.

"I went to the ball park every day and worked with weights," he said. "Then I'd spend time running in front of my house. It was a matter of regaining the strength and the confidence."

"I didn't want to talk too much about baseball during the winter, and my wife was a help. She knew it meant so much I didn't even want to talk."

Since going hitless in the season opener, Tolan has taken off on a 10-game hitting streak and is winging with his fastest start in the majors.

His 25 hits include seven doubles, a triple and three home runs, all adding up to a team-leading 16 RBI.

Furthermore he's scored 14 runs and has stolen eight bases in nine tries, second only to teammate Joe Morgan's nine for nine. "I've slowed down a little but only on my start," Tolan said. "I get up in the morning and I limp, I actually limp for two or three minutes," he added, "but once I get warmed up and the game starts it doesn't bother me."

Reds manager Sparky Anderson, recalling Tolan's role in Cincinnati's drive to the 1970 NL pennant, is among those who believe Tolan's all the way back.

"He's just taken up where he left off in '70," Anderson noted.

Waverly Girls Top Virginia

WAVERLY — The Waverly grade school girls' track teams ran their records to perfect 6-0 marks with wins over Virginia in track meets held Wednesday afternoon.

The 'A' team of 7th and 8th grade girls topped Virginia by a 40-24 tally while the 5th and 6th grade 'B' team came out on top by a 49½-14½ margin.

For the 'A' team, Peggy Nevins captured all individual first places finishes for Waverly with wins in the 50, 100 and 220 yard dashes. She also ran on the winning 440-yard relay team and took a third in the long jump.

Also on the winning relay team for Waverly were Andrea Hankins, Patty White, and Pam Turner. Running on the first place medley relay team for the winners were Tammy Newingham, Becky Bettis, Rachel Long and Cindy Williams.

In the 'B' division, Sandra Heaton won the 50 and 100 yard dashes and ran on the winning 440-yard relay team for Waverly. Kathy Walk helped out with wins in the long and high jump and also ran a leg of the winning relay.

Squires, Nets In Showdown

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Virginia Squires and the hot-shooting New York Nets met here Thursday night in the showdown game of the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division playoffs.

The Nets, hitting 60 per cent of their shots, squared the best-of-seven series at three games apiece on their home court Monday night with a 146-116 victory that left the Squires convinced of one thing—defense is the key to their championship chances.

"We played very poor basketball, defensively, Monday night," said the Squires' Doug Moe. "They got a lot of easy shots. We have to leap out after them."

Thursday night's winner goes into the ABA championship finals against the Indiana Pacers, surprise winners of the Western Division playoffs over the Utah Stars. The opener is at 2 p.m. Saturday at Bloomington, Ind.

Isaac, 37, needed only 49.764 seconds to negotiate his way around the 2.66 mile tri-oval, his red Dodge hitting a speed trap at the end of the long back straightaway at better than 215 m.p.h.

Later, to show his top lap was no fluke, the 1970 Grand National champion recorded a lap at 191.443 m.p.h.

His best lap was almost two miles an hour faster than that of David Pearson, who won the other front row berth by driving a Mercury at 190.699 m.p.h.

The second row spots for Sunday's 50-car lineup went to Richard Petty, who abandoned his familiar Plymouth to drive a Dodge for this race and clocked 188.567 m.p.h., and Bobby Allison, who streaked around at 188.388 m.p.h. in a Chevrolet owned by the legendary Junior Johnson.

The third row will be made up of Buddy Baker, who drove 186.376 m.p.h. in a Dodge; and Donny Allison, Bobby's younger brother, who recorded 182.807 m.p.h. in a Chevrolet. Red Barber, the three-time national sportsman champion, got his Ford in the field at 178.131 m.p.h.

Other qualifiers — only the first 10 positions were at stake in the initial trials — included Frank Warren, in eighth place at 179.048 in a Dodge; Country and western singer Marty Robbins, 174.789 in a Dodge; and 1971 rookie of the year Walter Ballard 173.867 in a Mercury.

The next 15 positions in the lineup will be at stake in second day qualifying Thursday.

Recognize, Isolate Infected Insects

Termites Outwit Scientist

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
HONOLULU (UPI)—A scientist aiming for a new non-polluting method of destroying termites found the biggest surprise was on him.

The insects recognized which of their colleagues were infected, clipped off their antennae and legs, built a wall to seal them off from the rest of the colony and left the contagious members to die.

But Dr. Minoru Tamashiro, director of a Navy-funded research project to find a non-pollutant that will control termites, is hopeful he'll outwit the destructive insect yet.

Tamashiro, an associate professor of entomology at the University of Hawaii, said he was growing "nematodes," a parasitic worm no bigger than a pencil dot, in the laboratory. Termites trapped outside and brought into the lab were infected by the nematodes, then turned loose to carry the disease back into their nests and cause an epizootic an insect epidemic.

"I don't know how they did it," Tamashiro said, "but the termites recognized the sick insects, isolated them and kept the disease from spreading to the rest of the colony."

"This really surprised me," Tamashiro said, "because to my knowledge this kind of behavior has not been detected before. Although termites are known to seal off poisoned areas, such as a tunnel leading to a home that's been exterminated, they were not known to single out individual members."

What was particularly baffling to Tamashiro was the termites recognized the infected insects "in some cases, before the symptoms became obvious." Although relatively high numbers—around 50,000—of infected termites were introduced into a colony, this number has not been high enough to initiate an epizootic," Tamashiro said. Intelligence not Credited

The scientist of Japanese ancestry doesn't believe the drastic type of quarantine springs from intelligence but from some kind of natural defense reaction that perhaps warns the termites of unusual behavior in a sick insect.

Tamashiro said that one of the biggest problems in curbing termites is their continual population explosion, with the queen laying up to 5,000 eggs a day and living up to 20 years. "The queen is a perpetual egg-laying machine," Tamashiro said. "This is her only function. There are vast numbers of termites in each colony, and the colonies are not easy to find."

Despite the obstacles, Tamashiro is hopeful he and his researchers will find an ingenious method of extermination, one that curbs the termite problem but causes no adverse effects to other life forms.

"Polarization Treatment"

Fatality Rate Cut In Half For One Kind Of Heart Attack

By ROBERT STRAND
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mexican cardiologists have reported that their controversial "polarization treatment" of one kind of heart attack has cut the fatality rate in half. The kind—myocardial infarction—kills 600,000 annually in the United States.

The treatment has been developed over the last 12 years at the Mexican National Institute of Cardiology. The research had been done largely on dogs, and only recently has the treatment been given to a large number of humans.

In the United States, the method has been criticized as unproven, although some Americans have been experimenting with it. The Mexican conclusions were reported at the Interamerican Congress of Cardiology.

Myocardial infarction—the main cause of coronary death—is the death or damaging of a part of the heart muscle caused by a reduction in the blood supply to the area. An abnormal heart beat can result, and then death is swift.

Dr. Abdo Bisteni of the Mexican Institute said that of those with infarction who reach a coronary care unit, 12 to 15 per cent die. The number who die of this cause without reaching a hospital is unknown. The Mexicans, who have tried their treatment on 2,000 dogs, announced that in the last two years it has been given to 250 patients. Only 6 per cent died.

What the Mexicans do is to restore injured heart tissue to health with "a polarization solution" injected in the patient intravenously.

The injured cell is electrically out of balance, and the solution is intended to restore equilibrium.

Bisteni said the injured cell is out of balance because potassium leaves it through holes in the cell's membrane wall, while sodium enters the cell from outside.

The purpose of the solution is to restore the chemical balance. This, in turn, theoretically restores the electrical balance.

The solution, originally developed by Dr. Demetrio Sodi-Pallares, is a mixture of potassium chloride, glucose and insulin in water.

Slowed Significantly

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The rise in national welfare costs and the number of recipients slowed significantly the last half of 1971, according to new government statistics.

Officials speculate privately that the trend may be due to some state cutbacks in payments and eligibility to plug the dollar drain on their treasuries. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says the cost of all public assistance, including Medicaid and cash payments, rose 23 per cent to a new high of $17.7 billion last year.

A further breakdown not in the report indicates, however, that the first half-year increase of 26.9 per cent slowed to 19.5 per cent during the second half.

At year's end 14.8 million persons were receiving cash welfare payments, a 7.2-per cent boost over the previous year but half the rate of increase for the last six-month period of 1971.

The report marks the first public release of welfare statistics on a calendar-year basis, rather than at the end of a fiscal year under which the government operates.

Asked to explain the change, a spokesman for HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service said it was because "the figures are becoming more significant all the time."

Timed for distribution this Wednesday, their release date was broken by the White House as part of an all-out attack Friday on the Senate Finance Committee's version of welfare reform.

HEW statisticians said average welfare payments in 1971 rose in 30 states and jurisdictions for old-age assistance, in 34 for aid to the blind, and in 40 for aid to the disabled and aid for families with dependent children.

AFDC rolls swelled by nearly one million adults and children last year to a new total 10.6 million. The cost to federal, state and local governments increased 27.8 per cent to $1.35 billion.

Medical-assistance payments climbed 24.1 per cent to $6.9

Payments for nursing-home care of poor people skyrocketed 54.6 per cent to nearly $230 million, and emergency-assistance costs rose almost 70 per cent to $1.5 billion.
